Ephrata Young Farmers hold their awards banquet

By DIETER KRIEG

MOUNT AIRY — The Ephrata Area Young and Adult Farmers Association held its seventh annual banquet here last Saturday night at the Mt. Airy-Durlach Fire Hall with 230 persons present. The event was highlighted by the presentation of numerous awards, the installation of new officers, and a comedy routine by a pair of clergymen which prompted a standing ovation at the conclusion of their program.

Rev. J. Paul Kehm and his identical twin-brother, Harry, provided the entertainment for the evening, enlightening the audience with more than an hour's worth of jokes and amusing stories, capped off by a message which advised them to keep three bones in mind in their daily lives. They are: The wishbone, for desire and initiative and goals; the funnybone for humor; and the backbone for honesty.

The awards given out and their recipients were:

Earl and Clarence Stauffer of Sunnycraft Farm for the highest increase in both milk

Rohrer named Outstanding Young Farmer

Charles Rohrer, left, recently voted Pennsylvania's Outstanding Young Farmer by the Pennsylvania Jaycees, operates a 265 acre chicken - hog - dairy farm near Paradise in partnership with his brother, Allan. The pair share responsibilities and find the arrangement mutually beneficial.

FFA gal has exhibited many leadership roles

By MELISSA PIPER

COCHRANVILLE - Growing up on a dairy farm isn't always an easy task, in fact it often means a lot of hard work and determination. The oldest of three children, Sharon Henley, 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennard Henley Jr., Troop Rd., here, has exhibited a great deal of both work and effort but "really enjoys" the responsibility.

While many youths see farm work as a chore, Sharon thinks quite the opposite. "I have spent a lot of time working with the cows and showing, but I have gotten much from the experiences," she explained.

Sharon, along with the rest of the Henley family, spends about 7 months out of the year traveling to dairy shows across the country. The family is well noted for their champion Ayrshire cattle and have captured numerous championships on state and national levels.

"Showing is one of the hardest parts of our work," Sharon admitted, "it keeps me quite busy but I think it has helped me in growing up."

Nat'l FFA officers visit Garden Spot

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER — The national FFA organization, with approximately 500,000 members, has widened its scope and base in recent years — thereby attracting more support from business and industry — which has enabled it to spread the message of agriculture and agri-business to more people than ever before. That is one of several points which were made Thursday morning by three national FFA officers who were in Lancaster County on a goodwill tour this week.

At a breakfast meeting sponsored by the Sperry-New Holland Company, the national officers made known their views on a variety of ag-related subjects. The trio — Mike Jackson, national FFA secretary; Ron Wilson, national central region vice president; and Doug Loudenslager, national eastern region vice president — is half of the complete slate of national officers which spends approximately 200 days of the year travelling to various parts of the country to tell about FFA programs and purposes, and seek support from agribusinesses.

Cloister team captures meat judging contest

EPHRATA — In a traditionally male oriented FFA judging contest, Donna Bender, a high school student here, shifted the traditions and became the top winner in the county meats contest. Miss Bender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bender, 133 E. Chestnut St., Ephrata, was the top individual judge at the event held last Saturday at Kunzler's Meats.

Along with being the first place individual judge, Miss Bender also helped the Ephrata team to place first in the team competitions. Other members were Steve Strauss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strauss, Ephrata R1 and Rick Sweigart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sweigart, Akron. Strauss was the fourth place judge with Sweigart receiving 6th place individual honors.

John Cramer and Jim High were other Cloister FFA members who placed in the top ten. Cramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cramer, Denver R2, placed second in the individual placings with High, son of Mr. and Mrs. John High, Akron, placing eighth.

Penn Manor High School FFA'ers placed second in the team contest and consisted of Rich Falk (third place individual), Bob Bachman (fifth place individual), and Lewis Witmer (seventh place individual).

Third place went to Solanco FFA with team members being Charles Blevins, Steve Huber and Dave Ransey.

Grassland FFA from Garden Spot High School placed fourth in the contest and included members Steve Sauder, Linford Weaver and Dean Weiler.

The contest was staged at Kunzler's Meat Company in Lancaster and consisted of the evaluating beef carcasses for quality and yield grades and identifying and placing classes of beef, pork and lamb.

James Heth and Bob Stover, plant manager and beef superintendent, conducted the competition.

+Bid is the price the dealer will buy from the farmer delivered to the mill. Offered is the price the dealer will sell for at his mill.

PROGRESSIVE FARMERS WANT PROFESSIONAL CONSULTATION

1. Is pH a false indicator of calcium levels in your soils?
2. Is sulphur holding back the yield, protein content and digestibility of your crops?
3. Is excessive magnesium what makes your land so wet and late?

If your present soil tests don't answer these questions, you will profit by our technical help. SOIL TESTS ARE DIFFERENT! Our complete soil analysis will help you balance soil fertility, which means more efficient cropping and feeding - less bought feed and fertilizer - more yield and profit.

WE SELL NO PRODUCTS — ONLY RECOMMENDATIONS

There is a reason why progressive farmers with sharp pencils hire us year after year for soil analyses and recommendations. We save them dollars. Balance makes crops to be proud of. Winter is the time to talk it over with:

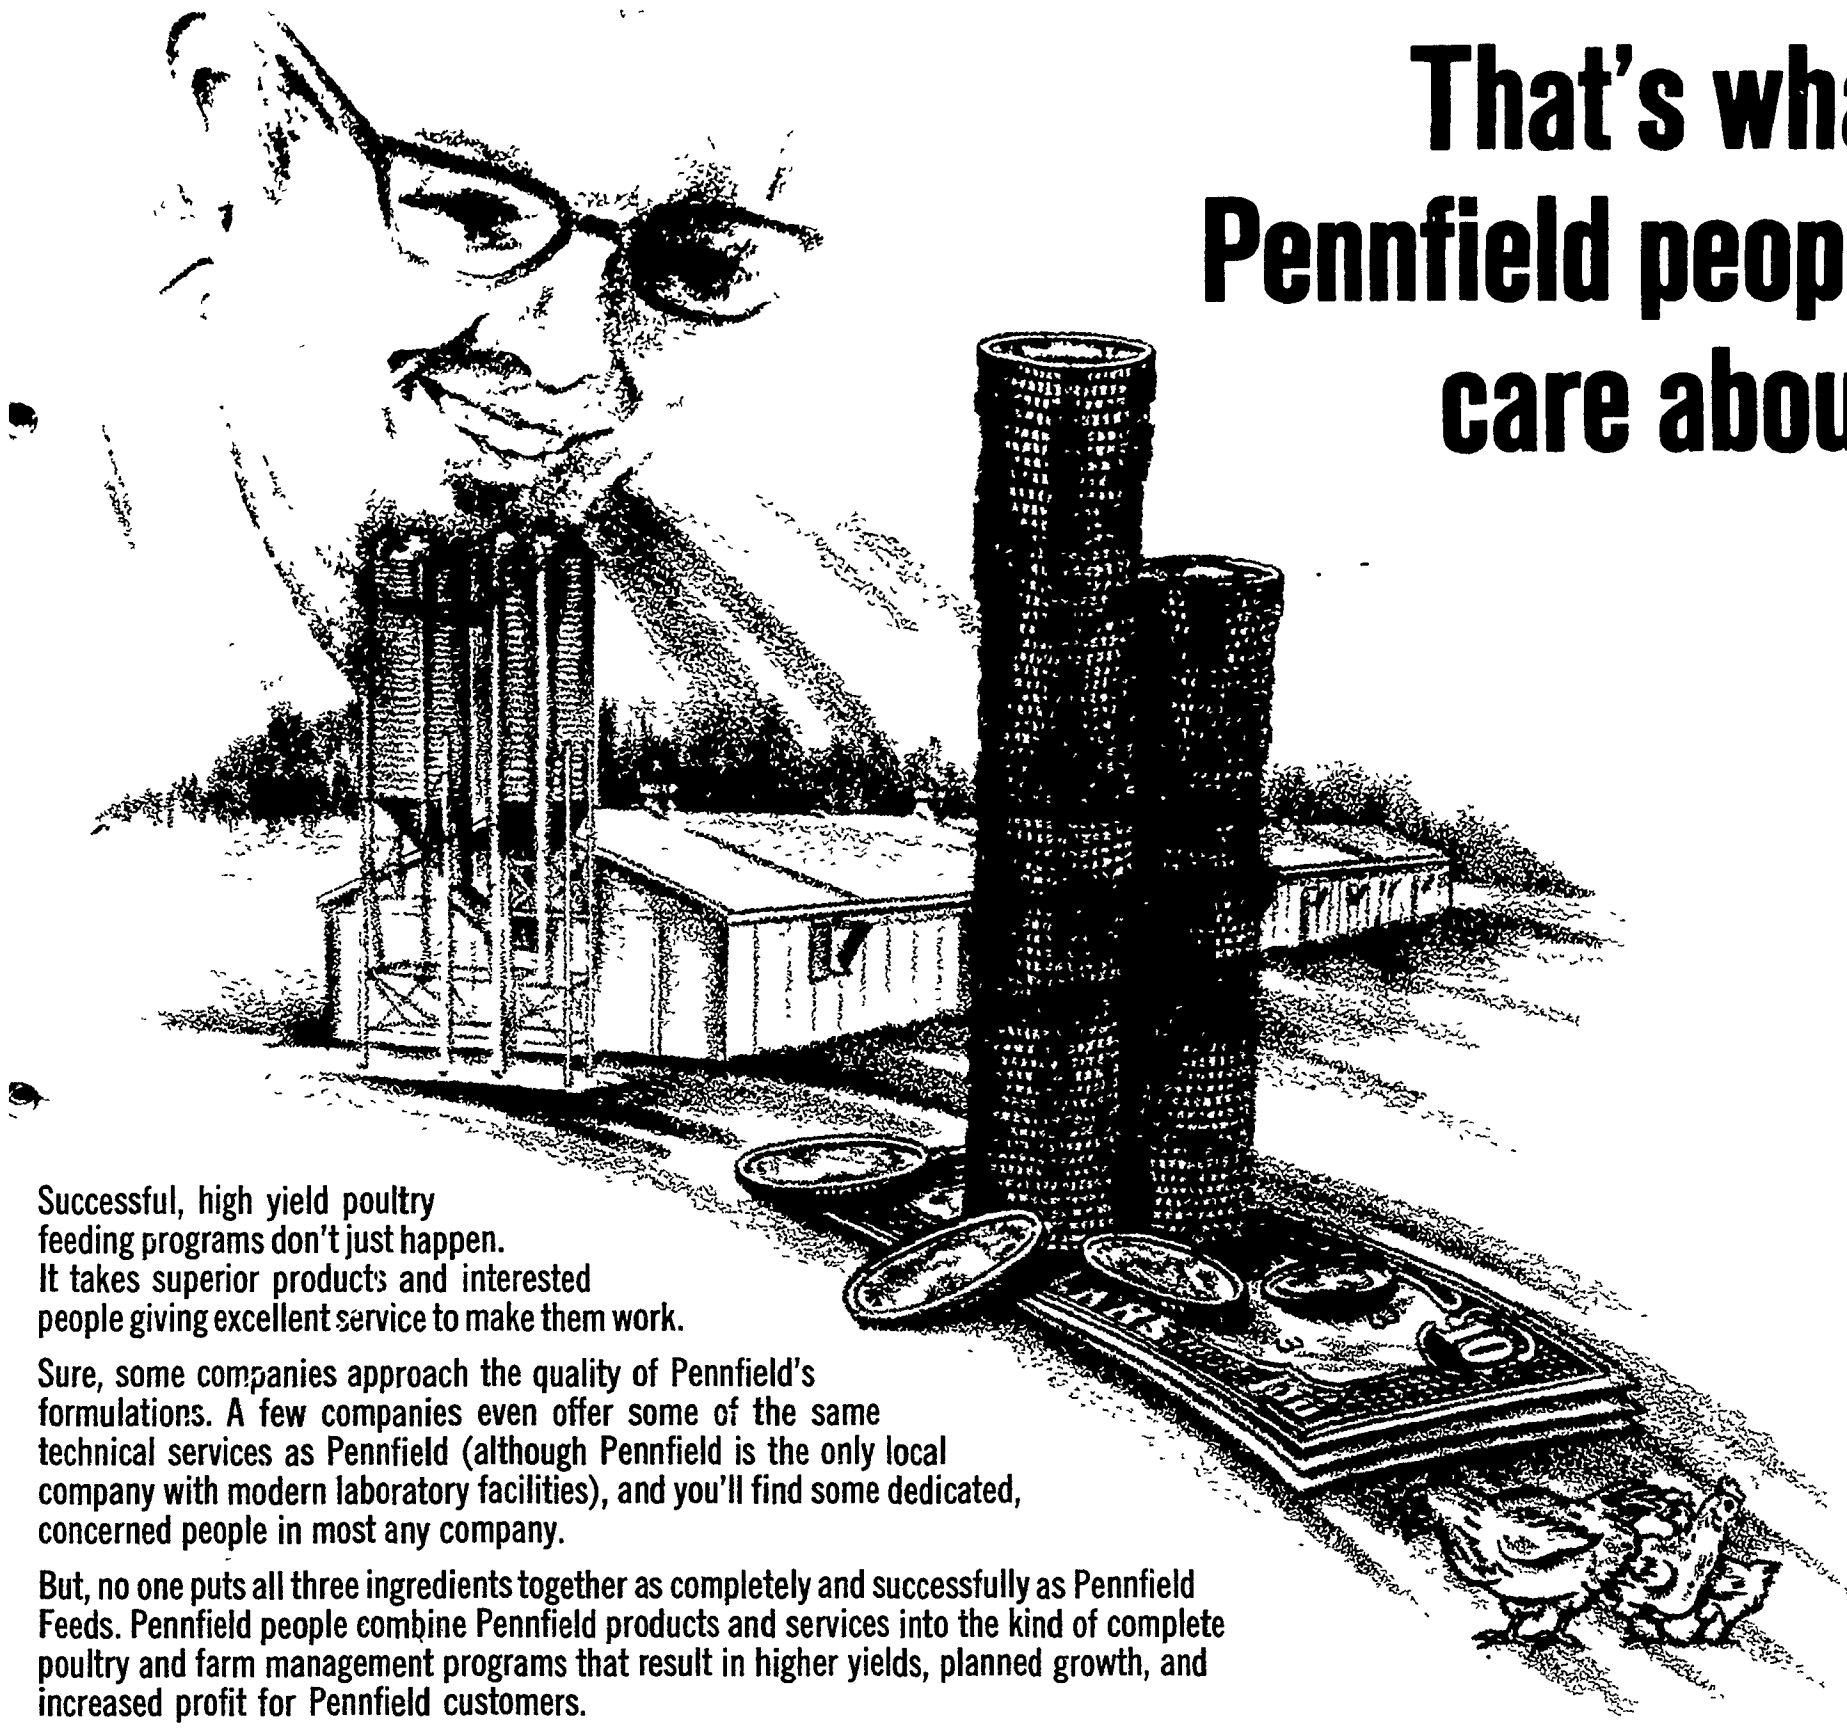
Your POULTRY PRODUCTIVITY, your PROFITABILITY.



That's what Pennfield people care about.

Successful, high yield poultry feeding programs don't just happen. It takes superior products and interested people giving excellent service to make them work.

Sure, some companies approach the quality of Pennfield's formulations. A few companies even offer some of the same technical services as Pennfield (although Pennfield is the only local company with modern laboratory facilities), and you'll find some dedicated, concerned people in most any company.

But, no one puts all three ingredients together as completely and successfully as Pennfield Feeds. Pennfield people combine Pennfield products and services into the kind of complete poultry and farm management programs that result in higher yields, planned growth, and increased profit for Pennfield customers.

Chemists, nutritionists, production personnel, veterinarians, computer technicians, business and marketing analysts, deliverymen, quality control specialists, financial experts, and more . . . led by your Pennfield Area Manager who can put them all together to develop and service a customized, profit-oriented program for you. These are Pennfield people. And, Pennfield people make Pennfield Feeds a better buy.

Want to know how Pennfield people can work for you to improve your yields and profit? Complete and mail this coupon for a no obligation survey.

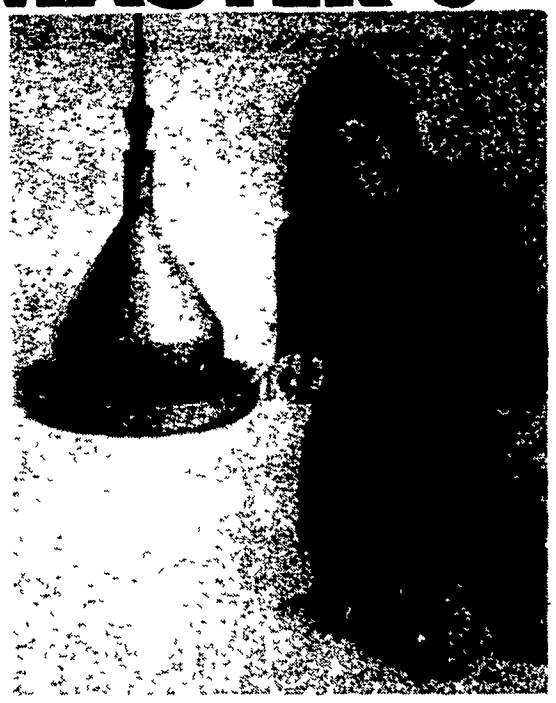
BEC PUT WATER WHERE IT'S NEEDED

WATERMASTER 3

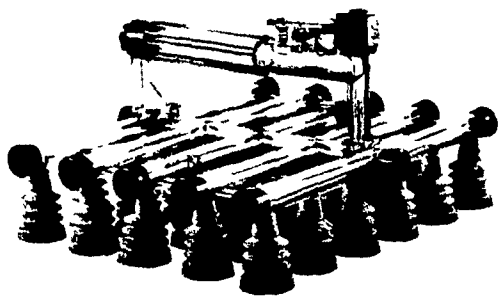


Moulded from polyetheylene for ease of cleaning and maximum life. The Watermaster 3 has been designed for use by broilers, pullets, layers and turkeys from day-old onwards.

The Bec 75 Waterer:

1. Takes up less room in the house-more room for the birds.
2. It is distribution that counts - more drinking points, for the same money, means that the birds have less distance to walk to water.
3. Lighter and more convenient to handle and clean.
4. At the end of the crop, easy to empty house - one person can carry 50 to 100 waterers.
5. Easy Connections: a] Saddle connector b] Tube fittings c] New easy method of raising and lowering the waterer with hanger box.

VACUUM EGG LIFTER



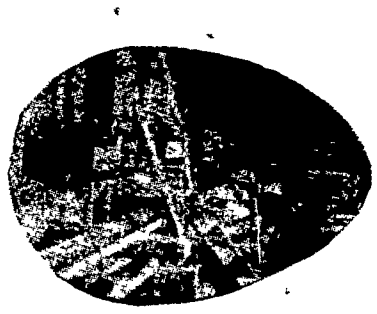
We also sell and service all type of vacuum pumps and vacuum lifter heads.

We handle the following items: 5-90 Case Per Hour Candlers and Graders, Egomatic Equipment, Parts and Products, Kuhl Equipment, Parts and Products, Burch Coolers, And All Other Supplies For The Poultry Industry.

We also stock parts and other supplies for the processor, including detergents and Anti-Foam.

CYCLE SYSTEMS OFFERS GREATER PROFITABILITY

Because Our System Design Is Based Upon:

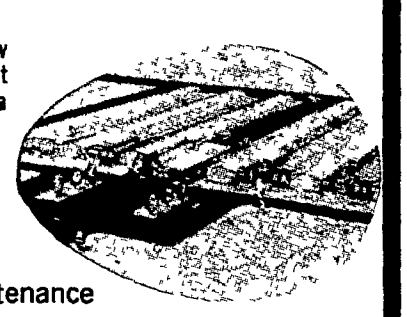


I. Feed, Water, and air efficiency

- Feed system uses automatic controls for reversing and intermittent feeding
- Chain in pipe system fills a deep trough to the level needed by the birds and permits controlled feeding
- Water runs intermittently on a timer, set depending upon use

II. Most effective ventilation in the industry

- Light controlled inlet full length of building provides uniform flow of fresh air, keeps birds healthy, and helps to dry manure. Most manure from these buildings comes out after one year, at a relatively low moisture content.

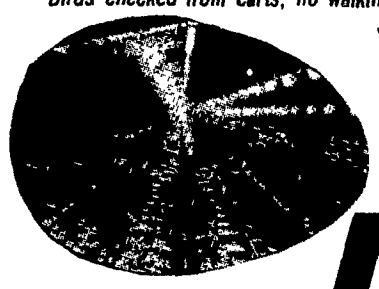


III. Highest possible quality

- Steel truss buildings erected and installed by Cycle
- Complete quality control checklist and regular on-site inspections
- One year guarantee

IV. Less man hours for operation and maintenance

- Equipment all on one level
- High rise buildings, manure removal once per flock or as desired
- Birds checked from carts, no walking



V. Greatest possible simplicity in egg handling.

- Eggs all on one level, more Grade A's per flock, no elevators, eggs go from 5" belts onto a cross belt direct to packer
- 5" belts are all driven by one variable speed motor
- Components are top quality, heavy duty bearings, polyurethane drive rollers, welded steel frames.

"All right — all right — I'm coming — now can't you guys shut up?" I mumbled to myself in answer to the cows' bawling.

I grabbed a hold of the sliding door in an effort to get out of the bitter cold outside, and into the comfortable warmth of the barn. Several good hard pushes and a few kicks wouldn't budge it. Like most everything else, it was frozen solid. Rubbing my ears briefly, and blowing into my hands to warm them, I ran around to the milk house to enter the barn from there. Although also held fast by ice and snow, the door slid open with the aid of a pitchfork which was kept near there.

I fumbled for the light switch and the cows instantly turned their heads towards me with louder "moos" than ever. Turning the radio on for friendlier company, I started the silo unloader — which was just as reluctant about "waking up" on this icy morning as I had been. Gradually, it picked up speed, and feed began to tumble down the frost-covered chute.

Bosco, one of my favorite cows, stretched her head out towards me as I walked past her and let me hear a "moo" which was almost loud enough to vibrate my cold bones. She was promptly slapped, even though she was a big pet. "Take it easy," I said, "you'll be fed in a minute!" Meanwhile, I walked to the grain storage area. A cold blast of air shot through the door as I opened it. "There's got to be a more comfortable way to make a living," I thought silently. The wind whipped down through the cracks between three small silos and sent some of the finer particles of grain into my eyes.

Returning to the dairy barn, I began to give each cow a heaping forkful of silage. The wind continued to whistle outside — even managing to lift a window out of its place and leaving it dangling and clattering. I stopped feeding and walked over to put it back into place, then securing it with a small wooden wedge driven between the metal frame and concrete block wall.

"Seventeen degrees in York and Lancaster; 15 in Harrisburg," I heard the radio announcer say. With the wind-chill factor it was minus 12.

It wasn't until I was done feeding silage that I noticed the cows' bawling hadn't subsided too much. I guessed they were complaining about the cold. Maybe they'll calm down after they have their grain.

Then Bosco told me what was wrong. I should have known. She was pressing her nose into an empty drinking bowl as hard as she could. No water! Feeling badly about having slapped her earlier, I hugged her head and told her (and in a way every other cow in the barn) that I'd work on it right away to fix it.

"Good morning," the man on the radio said. His words irritated me a bit. "Some morning," I thought, "no water, 17 degrees outside and a wind which makes it feel as though it's 30 degrees colder yet.

Checking several water bowls while the cows continued to bawl and look at me with big, anxious eyes, there was no water to be had anywhere. The pressure gauge on the water tank, with its "0" reading, looked more like a thermometer. I dreaded a broken-down pump and hoped it was just a frozen pipe somewhere. Thawing it would be a problem, unless I could manage to get some hot water out of the water heater in the milk house.

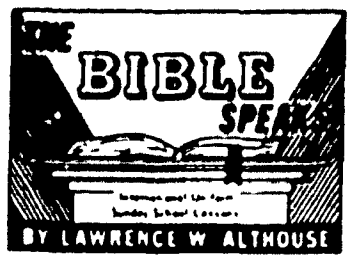
"Maybe it's just a fuse," I thought, holding on to the idea with lots of hope. Yanking the switch box open, I inspected both fuses. They were both intact "Just my luck," I mumbled, while 40 cows begged for water with deafening tones.

Our well was underneath a "small house" with a roof over it which was simply slid off the side to get to controls and pump. The whistling wind cut right through my jacket Boy, it was cold. It wasn't my day

In my hurry to get things fixed, and with the bitter cold possibly slowing the bloodflow to my brain, I had forgotten to take a flashlight out with me. Racing back around to the milk house, disgusted with myself and the weather, I grabbed it, ran back, and jumped across the low concrete block wall. I couldn't have hoped any more than I did that a fuse would be blown in the weathered box I was about to open. I was almost afraid to open it — knowing what it would mean if I did not find what I wanted.

Aiming my flashlight into the box, and crouching down low to get a good look, I discovered that luck was with me. Another trip to the milk house followed, but if a fuse is all it took to get the cows their water, I would have been willing to walk a couple of miles for it.

"You'll have your water now, gang!" I announced happily as I strolled back into the barn to watch the pressure gauge creep back to 20 or 30 pounds. Its normal reading was between 40 and 60, but with a herd of thirsty cows, it wouldn't get there for a while.



WHAT'S A GREAT FAITH?

Lesson for February 15, 1976

Background Scripture: Matthew 14 through 15.
Devotional Reading: Hebrews 11:1-6.

"O Woman, great is your faith!"

That is what Jesus said to the Canaanite woman. Here, he said, was a "great" faith. What did he mean?

To suffer many things

Before we try to answer that question, however, we need to deal with the story itself, for it is a troubling story, one that many Bible readers would prefer to skip over and ignore.

If we read this story carefully, we must choose one of the following alternatives:

(1) That Jesus was actually prejudiced against Canaanites (non-Jews) and the woman had to argue him into helping her

(2) That the account is not an accurate rendering of what really happened

(3) That Jesus' remarks reflect, not his own convictions, but the prejudices of others, perhaps his disciples, and he is using them simply to shame them and test the persistance of the woman.

We cannot prove any of these three, but the third interpretation seems to fit so much more closely the picture of Jesus we get elsewhere in the gospels. The words of Jesus in Matthew 15:21-28 seem totally uncharacteristic of Jesus.

Thus, when he initially responds to the woman's request for healing with silence, he seems to be waiting to see what will be the response of his disciples. He does not have to wait long: "Send her away,' they cry, "for she is crying after us!" (Matthew 15:33).

Crumbs from the table

Their motivation is hardly admirable: "Do something for her quickly so that she will stop bothering us!" (How like the dollar bill dropped quickly but reluctantly in a contribution envelope in order to get rid of the door-to-door canvasser!).

Isn't it their own prejudice with which he is shaming them when he says: "I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel"? And who could believe that Jesus is speaking for himself when he says to her: "It is not fair to take the children's bread and throw it to the dogs!" (Why should we deprive our own families to help some stranger far away?)

Jesus would find that "his people" are still saying audacious things like that today. Can't you just hear him repeating to us our own blasphamous cliches: "Charity begins at home," - "God helps those who help themselves," etc.?

So what is the "great faith" that Jesus sees in this woman?

It is not the arrogant pride of belonging to the "right" group, or having the "right" beliefs - as the disciples did. It is, however, the humble but persistent trust that God will not fail to help us if we dilligently seek him.

To Establish Soil Conserving Practices

Early spring is a good time to correct soil erosion problems by establishing contour strips, terraces, or sod waterways. The conservation of soil and water is a national interest and every land owner should be interested in doing his best possible job of conserving these natural resources. In the spring while the ground is being prepared for the season's crop, these practices can be introduced into the farming program with a minimum of disturbance. Fields with any slope should be either straight stripped or layed out in contour strips. Crop terraces can be established to help carry off the surplus water without severe soil losses. We urge local land owners to give some attention to these practices; many have already accepted these soil conserving methods with rewarding results.

To Obtain Seed Supplies

The middle of February is too early to be planting farm or garden seeds in this part of the country, but it is not too early to be ordering and receiving the seeds and materials needed for spring plantings. No doubt the "urban garden boom" will continue this summer; this means many more customers for limited seed supplies; therefore, those who wait until planting time might find seed supplies very limited. Seeds left over from last summer may be used providing they were stored in a dry place away from weed killing chemicals. The running of a "rag-doll" test on some of the seeds might determine the percentage germination that can be expected.

To Use Fertilizer Wisely

Even though fertilizer prices have moderated all growers should use commercial fertilizer efficiently and according to a complete soil test. If the test does not recommend a certain fertilizer element, then it should not be purchased or applied; the fertilizer dollar can be saved or put into needed lime or other elements. Properly limed soils will make more efficient use of all fertilizers and give better chemical weed control on crops. Livestock and poultry manure contain fertilizer elements (nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash) and should be considered when determining fertilizer needs. If the complete soil test reveals the soil to be excessively high in a certain fertilizer element, then that ingredient should not be applied this year.

To Build Soil Organic Matter

As warmer weather turns our attention to the new cropping season, many farmers and gardeners have the problem of a very heavy soil; clay-type soils fit into this group and should get some attention with additional organic matter. Any type of livestock or poultry manure, sawdust, wood shavings, or peat moss can be used to increase organic matter; this material should be mixed into the topsoil for several consecutive years in order to improve soil texture. When this is done additional lime may be needed in order to prevent the soil from getting too sour; however, in the long run these materials will improve the yield of nearly all crops. Heavy soils do not hold moisture as well and inhibit normal root development.

and fat production during the recently completed DHIA testing year. Their present herd average of 14,827 pounds of milk and 583 butterfat on 34 Holsteins is an improvement of 4,196 pounds of milk and 163 pounds of butterfat over the previous year.

Alvin Bollinger received the trophy for the second highest increase in milk production. His herd of 20 Holsteins completed the 1975 DHIA year with 13,685 pounds of milk and 545 pounds of butterfat. His improvement in milk production over 1974 amounts to 1,396 pounds.

Warren Bollinger was second in the most improvement in butterfat category with an increase of 51 pounds. His herd of 50 Holsteins averaged 13,592 pounds of milk and 535 pounds of butterfat at the end of the last DHIA testing year.

Galen Crouse received the association's top award for the highest milk production average for the year — 17,245 pounds with 119 Holsteins. The dairyman from Stevens R1 posted a butterfat average of 581 pounds of butterfat to go along with it.

Paul S. Horning walked off with the high butterfat award — 650 pounds with 42 Holsteins. The record rates sixth in Lancaster County. His milk production average was 17,145 pounds.

Mahlon Eberly was recognized as the organization's outstanding broiler grower. He reportedly has one of the lowest production figures in the County, managing to post production cost figures on two flocks which read 18.44 cents per pound. Eberly, who was recently elected as public relations director of the group, has 13,000 broilers on his farm.

AGRI-KING
KEY TO PROFIT

Del Curley
President

15,000 LBS. MILK MINIMUM PRODUCTION GOAL

We sincerely believe this is a reasonable and attainable goal for any dairyman milking holstein cows with average genetic potential.

Every university or USDA study we have seen shows a direct relationship between milk production and income over feed cost. The higher the production, the higher the feed cost and the higher the income over feed cost.

Our records show income over feed costs increases approximately $50 for each 1,000 lb. increase in average milk produced per cow. For maximum profit fresh cows must be fed for maximum production. This means lead feeding according to production until she consumes all the grain she can handle and stay on feed. The place to save money is by reducing the amount of grain fed as production drops and feeding just enough extra to restore body condition. More money is lost by over feeding the low producers and under feeding the high producers than anything else with the exception of feeding rations improperly balanced in the first place.

You lose several ways, the high producers peak too soon, too low and don't hold as long as they could. The low producers get too fat which results in all kinds of problems when they freshen again. You also have all kinds of problems with your high producers because they have drained their system of vital nutrients needed to protect their health. Breeding and herd health problems result in too many good cows being culled, a very important loss of profit too often over looked. Most of the best cows are lost before they ever reach their genetic potential to produce milk. This is a sad situation that need not exist.

See the following study of DHI records by South Dakota. Note the differences in the high producing and low producing herds which bears out our observations.

	25 High Herds	25 Low Herds	Percent Difference High vs. Low
Cows Per Herd	40.8	47.1	—15.4
Pounds Milk Per Cow	16,272	8,337	+48.7
Percent Fat	3.6	3.6	—
Pounds Fat Per Cow	584	301	+48.4
Percent Days in Milk	86.3	73.0	+15.4
Pounds Grain Per Cow	5,616	3,800	+32.3
Pounds Milk Per Pound Grain	2.9	2.1	+27.6
Pounds Silage Per Cow	9,380	7,616	+18.8
Pounds Hay Per Cow	5,040	4,424	+12.2
Days On Pasture	52	76	—46
Value of Product	$1,095	$535	+51.1
Grain Cost Per Cow	$193	$122	+36.8
Feed Cost Per Cow	$322	$229	+28.9
Income Over Feed Cost	$722	$296	+61.6
Length Dry Period	60	102	—70.0
Percent Culled	23.0	19.9	+13.5
Average Years On Test	7.5	5.6	+25.3

We contend these differences are primarily due to the following:
+Not feeding according to production.
+Not feeding a balanced ration based on testing.
+Not feeding enough grain.
+Feeding low quality roughages.
+Vitamin and mineral deficiencies and imbalance.
+Too much or too little protein.

Genetic potential is a factor also but we contend most dairy herds today have a minimum genetic potential of 15,000 pounds of milk.

The Agri-King program will take almost any dairyman to 15,000 pounds and higher if he really has the desire to do so. Agri-King can help the dairyman who is satisfied with 11,000 to 12,000 pounds of milk, reduce his cost of production by eliminating over and under feeding of energy, protein and minerals, but this is not where the real profit lies. Add higher production and better herd health to these benefits and you really improve the picture.

If you are not an Agri-King customer give us a try, we can do what we say. If you are an Agri-King customer and not doing as well as you like as yet, let us dig a little deeper. Let's make sure you understand our program and we have correct up to date information.

THE AGRI-KING PROGRAM WORKS, if not there has to be a reason; if we work together we'll find it.

Ranch at Denver R2, was cited as the EAYFA outstanding poultryman. The recipient of numerous awards over the years, and well-known in the poultry business and agriculture as a whole, Leininger has 90,000 laying hens and complete processing and packaging facilities.

Rick Pfautz, known for his interest and achievements with registered Duroc swine, received the EAYF trophy in recognition for his accomplishments. A former football player at Ephrata High School, Pfautz received the American Farmer Degree in Kansas City last Fall.

Jesse Balmer of Lititz R4 was named the group's outstanding young farmer. Balmer has a 223-acre farm and has a herd of 167 registered Guernseys, of which 84 are milking. His DHIA herd average last year was 10,352M and 502F.

Noah Wenger and his wife, Barbara, received the EAYFA award for outstanding community service. A poultry and beef farmer from Stevens R1, Wenger has a long record of community service and is currently seeking election to the State House of Representatives from the 99th District on the Republican ticket. Last year U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, Earl Butz, appointed him to be chairman of the state ASCS office, with which he has been affiliated for the past four years.

Two other awards were presented to individuals who helped the cause of the Ephrata Area Young and Adult Farmer's Association, which has grown to a membership of more than 100 from a modest beginning of 24 charter members when it was formed in 1968. Those cited for their contributions were: Richard Dean, Ephrata Area High School physical education teacher, for helping to organize the EAYFA volleyball tournament; and Bill Wingenroth, sales representative for E. M. Herr Equipment, for helping to organize field trips and community projects. Wingenroth is also a member of the EAYFA chapter.

New officers installed at the meeting were: Tom Zartman, president; Luke Zimmerman, vice president; Vernon Leininger, secretary; Melvin Nolt, treasurer; and Mahlon Eberly, public relations director. Outgoing president, Gary Eberly, noted in his remarks that a new program has been started by the chapter to bring the meaning of agriculture closer to elementary school children.

Paul King, Chester County dairyman who serves as president of the state Young Farmers Association, remarked that the group should continue to take a positive approach to farming and consider it "a way of life, and a way to make a living." He advised those present to not falter with their educational endeavors and noted that the Pennsylvania Young Farmers stress the learning concept.

If we ever ceased to have faith in each other, we'd have to start living within our incomes.

It is very much better sometimes to have a panic feeling beforehand, and then be quite calm when things happen, than to be extremely calm beforehand and to get into a panic when things happen.

Winston Churchill

Get the most feed value out of your hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv*

You get more milk per ton of hay when you treat your hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv. Hay Pre-Serv lets you cut hay as much as 26 hours earlier, at moisture levels up to 25%.

This means a larger hay crop, with less leaf loss and shattering, and less risk of weather damage. Hay Pre-Serv is easily applied to baled, chopped or stacked hay and prevents mold, spoilage, oxidation and excessive heating.

You get better color, improved palatability and more digestible nutrients in every ton of hay you cut.

If you grow succulent forage crops, make the most of them with Beacon Silage Pre-Serv.* With Silage Pre-Serv you can harvest at moisture levels from 40 to 70%, and get as much as 30% more feeding value per ton of roughage.

Robert Hess, center, was named the Red Rose Star Farmer for 1976 earlier this week when six panelists studied applications from seven FFA students and Hess came up with the most first-place votes. Six of the seven were available to meet the judges for interviews. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hess, Lancaster R2, Hess is a junior at Penn Manor where August Birchler heads the FFA Department. Runner-up in the contest was Solanco's Vickie Warfel. The trophy was presented by Randy Ranck.

FFA'ers named Star Farmer Agri - businessman

James Shirk

Seventeen-year-old Jim Shirk, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shirk, Lititz R2, was named Red Rose Star Agribusinessman for 1976 at a contest held last Tuesday night at the Mount Joy Vo-Tech School. He was chosen over numerous other applicants from all over the County. A junior at Warwick, Shirk has been employed part-time for three years as a work experience program on the James Myer dairy farm, Lititz R2. He serves as treasurer of his FFA chapter, where Gerald Martin heads that department.

Runner-up in the contest was Reuben Auker of Ephrata.

Shirk receives degree

The Honorary Keystone Degree, the highest award bestowed by the Pennsylvania Future Farmers of America, was recently given to Glenn A. Shirk, Chester County Agricultural Agent. The award was presented at the Pennsylvania FFA mid-winter convention held in Harrisburg.

The award is given to those adults who have made significant contributions to the FFA program. Mr. Shirk has worked closely with the FFA and has helped advance vocational agriculture in Chester County for the past eleven years. He previously received honorary membership in the Oxford and Owen J. Roberts FFA Chapters.

Maryland produces volume of food

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland farmers, despite a three decade urban population boom in their state which has seen their numbers and their farmlands shrink, still are able to produce 56.5 percent of the basic food needs of the state.

This figure was cited by Agriculture Secretary Young D. Hance in noting that Maryland is observing "Maryland Agriculture Week."

Hance said, "I asked Richard P. Parsons, Director of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Division of Marketing, to investigate the degree of self-sufficiency potential we have in Maryland in the basic food groups.

"In summary, our dairy industry has the present capacity to supply our needs, our poultry industry can put more than enough chickens on our tables, our vegetable growers could supply about half our needs, we could make about half our flour but we are rather short when it comes to beef, pork and fruits," Mr. Hance said.

Here are the statistics:

POULTRY — Consumption, 170,900,000 pounds, ready to cook chicken; production 531,182,000 pounds — production equals 310.8 percent of need. Turkey consumption 35,300,000 pounds, production 560,000 pounds — production equals 1.6 percent of need. Table eggs — consumption 97,300,000 dozen, production 8,988,000 dozen — production equals 9.2 percent of need.

DAIRY — Consumption (fluid milk, cheese, canned milk, ice cream and butter) 1,384,000,000 pounds; production 1,490,000,000 pounds - production equals 107.6 percent of need.

FRUITS — Consumption (fresh) 345,200,000 lbs. (processed) 214,200,000; total consumption 559,400,000 lbs. Production (fresh) 64,720,000 (processed) 43,670,000 lbs.; total production 108,390,000 lbs. — production equals 19.5 percent of need.

VEGETABLES — Consumption (fresh) 420,100,000 lbs., (processed) 275,000,000; total consumption 695,100,000 lbs. Production (fresh) 54,410,000 lbs., (processed) 326,000,000 lbs.; total production 380,410,000 lbs. — production equals 54.7 percent of need.

RED MEATS — Beef and veal, consumption 519,500,000 lbs., production 47,848,000 lbs., — production equals 9.2 percent of need.

POTATOES — (White and Sweet) Consumption 514,100,000 lbs.; production 57,400,000 lbs. — production equals 11.2 percent of need.

FFA gal has exhibited many leadership roles

Sharon has taken her work seriously and has gained recognition for it. The young lady has served as president of the State Junior Ayrshire Club and has put much effort into rebuilding the organization and encouraging young people to join.

"We've been trying to promote the Ayrshire breed and hope to get others involved." "It hasn't been easy but we are hoping for a better year in 1976."

The Octarora High School senior, is also a member of the National Junior Ayrshire Association and has had one All American Ayrshire recorded already. Sharon has two animals registered for All Americans in the breed this year and is still waiting for the final judgement.

Sharon has had numerous champions at area shows and in 1974 exhibited the All American three-year-old Ayrshire in Harrisburg.

FFA President

While the cattle business keeps Sharon busy, the young lady is also president of the Octarora FFA and one of the few women in the state to have won the coveted Keystone Farming Degree.

Although an academic student, preparing for college, Sharon has taken FFA for four years and has served as vice president, chapter reporter and vice president and secretary for the Chester County FFA.

Being one of the first FFA members in her school, Sharon noted that she wasn't readily accepted by her male counterparts. "I had to really work much harder than anyone to prove myself," she explained.

"It took awhile but they (male FFA members) did finally accept me."

Receiving her Keystone degree was a goal reached for the FFA'er as she had been looking forward to the honor since beginning her projects. "Receiving my Keystone was certainly very exciting, I wouldn't believe that I finally made it that far." Sharon won the award for her outstanding dairy projects along with her leadership roles.

Sharon firmly believes that there is definitely a place for women in the FFA program. "Today there are so many new projects that girls are finding more of an open door to work in agriculture," she stated.

"Horticulture and agribusiness work have really given us more opportunities."

A member of the Manor 4-H Dairy Club in Chester County, Sharon has been active in 4-H work also. An excellent dairy judge and showperson, the young lady has sharpened her skills through the many dairy competitions.

An outstanding student, Sharon will begin nursing school at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lancaster following her graduation. And while her main activity will be studying, Sharon says she'll be ready to hit the show circuit during the summer months.

"Some people think all that work is a hardship, but for me - well, I've enjoyed growing up with dairying."

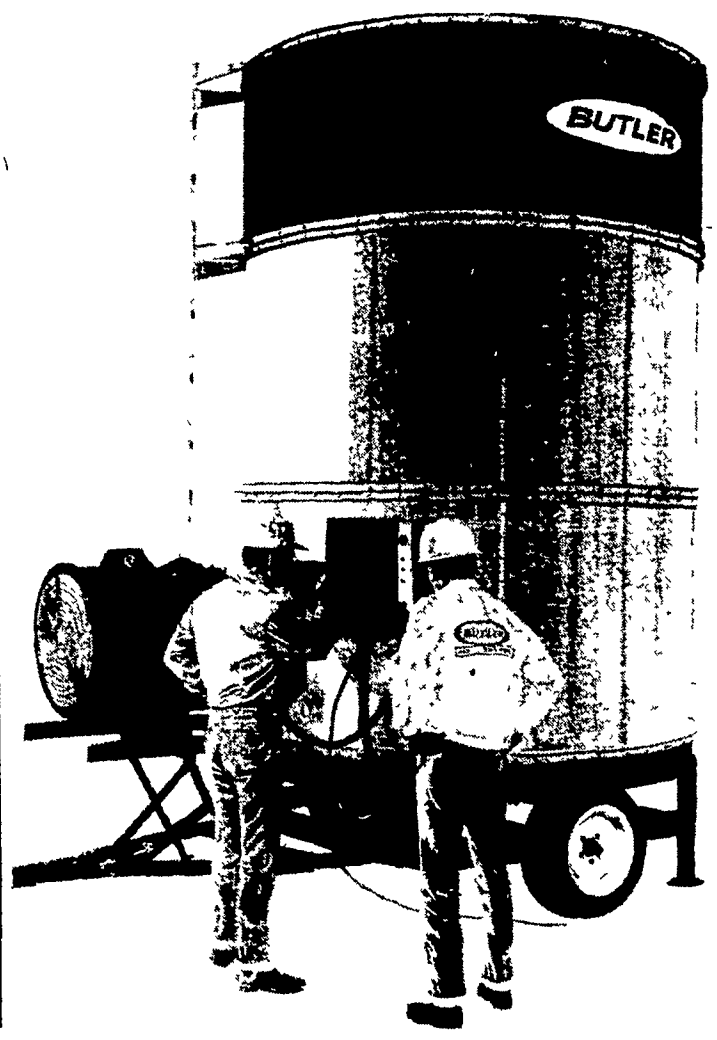
BUTLER KAN-SUN BATCH DRYER



The Kan-Sun Batch Dryer is especially designed for

- . the farmer whose daily harvest rate is under 2,100 bushels
- the farmer who is drying grain for the first time, and wants to make a minimum dryer investment
- the feeder who raises limited amounts of grain, and doesn't want to haul his grain to town for drying and haul it back for feed.
- . the farmer with separate field and storage locations; the portable Kan-Sun Batch Dryer can be moved to the grain, and to the storage
- . the farmer who owns an in-bin system, such as Butler Stor-N-Dry®, and wants to increase his daily drying rate, he will use the Kan-Sun for drying, and the bins as cooling and storage tanks (dryeration)

The Butler Kan-Sun Batch Dryer can remove 10 points of moisture from 90 bushels of corn an hour In a 24-hour drying day, the total dried and cooled will be 2,100 bushels Using dryeration can increase drying capacity to 2,700 bushels

Four countians honored at Lancaster Extension meeting

By MELISSA PIPER

LANCASTER - Three members of the county extension service along with a former 4-Her were honored here on Wednesday evening during the annual extension program.

Doris Thomas, extension home economist, M. Maxwell Smith, county agent and Jay Irwin, associate county agent were the recipients of honors, bestowed on them by the state extension service. Vernon Leininger, a Denver R2 farmer, was also recognized as the state 4-H alumnus winner from Lancaster County.

Leininger received a plaque from the Olin Corp., significant of his work in agriculture, following a successful 4-H career. Leininger and his wife Allegre, who were both members of the Lancaster County Baby Beef Club, operate the Ko-Ka-Le-Ko Egg Ranch near Denver having 90,000 layers on their farm. The couple also raise 400 steers and slaughter hogs.

Leininger served as president of the Baby Beef Club in the county and was a delegate to the National 4-H camp in 1947. A prominent member in the local poultry producers association, Leininger also served as president of the Pa. Poultry Federation and is currently a director of the group.

Receives Ruby Award

M. Maxwell Smith, Lancaster County agent, was the recipient of the Ruby Award from Epsilon Sigma Phi, the Penn State University

Dairy Feeder
TWO MODELS AVAILABLE
PAT 3557757
The Model 101 Serv-O-Matic may be mounted through the wall in a loose housing system or through the fenceline for open lots Side braces are also provided for mounting and installation
The feeder opening is designed to permit only one cow to eat at a time A 2 inch auger drops approximately 1 lb of concentrate per minute into the feeder . this is the same rate the cow eats . . no feed remains in the feeder when she moves away
A simple magnet around the cow's neck will activate the feeder motor as she places her head into the feeder. Cows without a magnet are unable to get feed

"Selectively" Provides More Feed to Top Producers

The Serv—O—Matic Dairy Feeder enables you to feed additional grain and concentrates only to the top producing cows in your herd! It eliminates the labor problem of separating the herd in a loose housing system to give individual attention to top producing animals.

The Serv—O—Matic is activated by a simple magnet fastened around the cow's neck. This way, only the cows you select can activate the feeder and receive additional ration . . . yet all animals can still be housed together.

Each cow producing 10 lb. or more over the herd average should receive extra feed. In actual trials, cows on the Serv—O—Matic consume an extra 10 lbs. of grain per day [while eating some less in the parlor]. Milk output shows an average increase of 1 lb. of milk for each pound of concentrate fed through the Serv—O—Matic . . . some as high as 5 lbs. of milk per pound of feed!

One Serv—O—Matic will normally handle 20-30 cows in an 80-120 cow herd. Normal procedure is to put fresh cows on extra ration and remove the magnet when production drops to a predetermined level.

Chapter of the honorary extension fraternity. Glenn Ellenberger, president of the honorary and Lehigh County agent, presented Smith with a pin, recognizing his outstanding contributions to extension work since 1937.

"The award is presented to those who have exhibited, extension achievements and have worked to make the service more professional," Ellenberger explained.

"Max Smith has shown these qualities and we are happy to honor him."

Doris Thomas, extension home economist, was presented with a statuette of the Nittany Lion for having contributed much to the field of nutritional education. The honor was bestowed on Doris by Cheryl Reitz, representing the Capital Region Home Economists. Mrs. Thomas had been honored by the national association of home economists earlier in the year at their convention, winning a distinguished service award.

Irwin Honored

Thomas Piper, county agent in Adams County, presented Jay Irwin with the 1975 State Achievement Award for outstanding extension service in less than ten years. "Jay has already made important contributions to the people in Lancaster and in Pennsylvania," Piper noted, "it is with pride that we present him with a statue of the Nittany Lion."

Pasto Recreates Pugh

Featured speaker for the evening's program was Dr. Jerome Pasto, Associate Dean for Resident Education for the College of Agriculture, Penn State. Pasto recreated a talk given by Evan Pugh, first principal of the Farmer's High School (forerunner of Penn State) delivered before the Cumberland Co. Agricultural Society in 1860.

Pasto selected several paragraphs and sentences from Pugh original two-hour speech and highlighted the educator's talk. Pugh had fought for more agricultural education and stated, "we need farmers who really understand the importance of science in farming."

Setting up agriculture investigation stations was also a prominent plea in Pugh's speech as was his fight for legislative funds for training farmers.

Pugh rebuked President Buchanan, a Lancaster County resident, who had vetoed funds for creating land grant universities.

Dr. James Van Horne, family life specialist for Penn State, joined with Pasto in relating the history of Pugh and his fight for agricultural training. Van Horne explained that Pugh was an accomplished student who studied in Germany and became a prominent chemist. Pugh died at the age of 36 and is buried in Bellefonte near State College. Pugh's greatest accomplishments were his establishment of Penn State and his fellowship in the London Chemical Society.

Also included in the program was soloist Marlene Hough, of Quarryville.

One thing you can say for greed: it's responsible for some mighty imaginative rationalizations.

Landis wins wool honor

Recently, the National Wool Growers Association sponsored a district "Make It With Wool" contest at Easton, and Montgomery County had a girl enter the contest.

The contestant was Marilyn Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Landis, Jr., Souderton, who placed second in the district with her two piece wool ensemble.

Marilyn is a 17 year old senior at Souderton High School and has been invloved with 4-H projects for a total of 8 years.

There were certain requirements in making the outfit. The material had to be at least 80 percent wool and no less than 70 percent. She had to make the complete outfit herself. Contestant had to model the garment and the outfit had to be made strictly for that contest. It could not have been entered in another contest or project prior to the "Make It With Wool" competition.

Marilyn also took another top honor at last month's Pennsylvania Farm Show, winning the first-place sweepstakes award in the tailoring division.

Nat'l FFA officers

useful rolls in any career," Jackson responded to one reporter's inquisity about his wanting to attend law school after completing his agricultural studies at Purdue University. The 21-year-old youth is a native of Tipton, Ind., and comes from a crop and livestock farm in that state. He noted that education is the backbone of the FFA program, to which Wilson added "A good farmer is always a learner."

All three officers repeatedly stressed the fact that FFA is involved with more than "production agriculture," while at the same time acknowledging that the club was at one time limited to that. Wilson explained that production agriculture is still the heart of the association, but around it there is a circle of approximately 200 businesses which are directly connected to farming enterprises. "FFA prepared students for any of these forms of farming, agribusiness, floriculture, etc.," he said. A career in vocational agriculture instruction upon graduating from Kansas State is his goal.

With the American Farmer Degree a requirement for holding a national office, the three youths spoke from a well-rounded background of experience and knowledge, and with admirable poise. Their present duties, due to the amount of travelling they must do, have required them to drop out of school for a year and live as a group away from home for more than half of the year. They were accompanied by Coleman Harris, associate executive secretary of the national FFA, which is headquartered in Alexandria, Va.

The question of land use legislation was brought up and all three, as well as state and local FFA officers present, were in agreement that states should begin to take some action on the matter. Convinced that farmers and vo-ag students still need considerable familiarization on the issue, Loudenslager pointed out that the FFA has the means to spread information.

The 21-year old Loudenslager from Ohio State University noted that the U.S. is losing close to a million acres of farm land each year, and that remaining farmland is then more efficiently managed to make up for the loss. "The FFA is concerned with efficient use of the land," he said. His future plans include teaching and part-time management of his home farm near Morral, Ohio.

Getting the general public to realize what the FFA, agriculture and agribusiness is all about is one of the primary objectives of today's FFA program, which last year had funds of $680,000. To achieve this goal, the organization has set up a Food For America educational program for elementary children, who in turn can take the message and printed matter home with them. Dr. Robert Herr, of the Garden Spot School District, pointed out this project originated at his school and has since spread to all parts of the country with enthusiastic response.

Along with the FFA's phenomenal rate of growth has come a more favorable public image. There are three main reasons for this, according to the FFA leaders who were present at the meeting. First of all, the organization has become more diversified — offering more programs and thereby attracting more members. Over half of the club's membership is now involved in programs other than ag production. Businesses and industry are coming out in greater support of the organization, and the FFA itself has stepped out to tell others what it's all about, rather than keep the news within itself. Furthermore, agriculture has entered an era of increased public awareness, which in turn has caused prople to take more notice of the FFA. Appearances have been made on major TV programs, including NBC's TODAY show. "It has forced us to tell our story," one of the young men commented.

Citing a national growth rate of up to 20,000 members per year, FFA officers and advisers believe the educational programs and their influence will continue to expand as the world sharpens its focus on the segment of the economy which feeds us all.

Coleman Harris, associate executive secretary of the national FFA organization; Doug Loudenslager, national FFA vice president for the Eastern Region; Greg Davis, Pennsylvania FFA president from Tioga County; and Mike Jackson, national FFA secretary, were all in Lancaster County earlier this week to meet with local agribusinessmen, FFA leaders, farmers, and members of the press. Their message concerned the importance of the many diversified roles of the FFA.

Young farmers hear trends in filing income tax returns

ELIZABETHTOWN - Before the spring plowing and planting begin, farmers have an important job in store for them which could add a little profit to their pocket or a red letter addition to their bank accounts. For the months February to April have always been the "proverbial period" for filing taxes.

Young farmers who met here on Thursday evening, heard two tax consultants speak on ways to file farm income taxes and the methods to do so efficiently. Don Boyer, an ag instructor at Elco High School in Lebanon County and Ron Bower, an area tax accountant, addressed the group on what might have been titled, "loopholes, investment and judgement."

James Green, young farmer advisor for Elizabethtown area, cautioned farmers on keeping good records. "We've got to get a step beyond the old shoebox filing system," he noted. "Keeping good records is for your benefit and is essential for management."

Boyer, a former tax consultant, explained some ways for farmers to cut taxes by paying wages to children who work on the farm. "Wages for children, is paid on a monthly or weekly basis, can be deducate as a business expense," he explained. "However entering into this type of arrangement requires some consultation from a tax person as it must be done properly."

Auditing seemed to be a favorite subject among many and Boyer explained that the auditing system is determined in several ways. "Some audits are really routine such as taking every 15th return, but another more sophisticated method is done by the computer."

Boyer noted that computers have been pre-set for limits. "If a farmer shows a feed bill over "x" number of dollars but it doesn't seem to match his number of cows or pounds of milk - then the computer might single him out for an audit."

Disagreements over audits can be taken from the district office up to the regular court system is a problem cannot be ironed out explained the instructor, "it depends on what amount of money is being discussed and in question."

Ron Bower explained several new tax changes for the current year. Under the new law a personal credit of $30 is available for dependents and the filing individual. "Many people are forgetting this and you should be aware that this option is open."

The accountant also noted that a person earning less than $8000 per year may be eligible for credit up to $400 under a new law for 1975.

Individual retirement funds were also mentioned, as it is now possible to take $1500. per year to begin a retirement plan. The amount is not taxed until withdrawal.

Both men cautioned farmers about keeping adequate records for machinery depreciation. "Try not to lump all machinery together," Boyer noted, "separate machinery listings can help when pieces are traded or sold."

Taking investment credit for housing presented many questions from the young farmers as their buildings were in question. Much controvery has arisen over the topic as some buildings on the farm are eligible for investment credit while others are not. Milking parlors - especially rotary type have been excepted in some instances but confinement housing for hogs have. "It is a matter of whether the equipment inside can be used elsewhere," Boyer noted. "My advice has been to try to take the building for credit but to have the money in reserve in case it does not work out."

The IRS seems to be in disagreement over the topic also as in the current tax guide a hen house is eligible for investment credit but a laying house is not. The difference - no one quite knows!

While many situations are plausible, both tax consultants noted that filing on time is essential. "Don't let April 15th go by and not file," they cautioned, "it is better no to pay and sign a note then not to file at all."

The human being is an incurable optimist. He believes he has a pretty good chance to win a lottery, but that there is hardly any chance of his getting killed in a traffic accident.

NEW!

SOW LIMITED™

Lets your sows know when they've had enough

If your sows and gilts had their way, they'd consume too much feed at the early stages of gestation. That isn't good for them, or their baby pigs. So, hogmen try to limit consumption by daily feeding of bulk rations or by feeding every other day. Now, thanks to Master Mix® Research, there's a better way to feed gestating sows and gilts. New Sow Limited from Master Mix. Sow Limited is a "self-limiting" feed that lets your sows and gilts eat as much as they want, yet they can still keep in top condition. This new formula is designed especially for confinement operations that use self-feeders. Feeding is more convenient for you and every sow in the house gets her fill without getting out of condition. There are three Sow Limited formulas to meet the changing needs of your sows and gilts — from the start of gestation all the way to farrowing.

See your local Master Mix Dealer for all the details about Sow Limited feeds.

Winter driving tips

Keep Room For Stopping on Wintry Roads

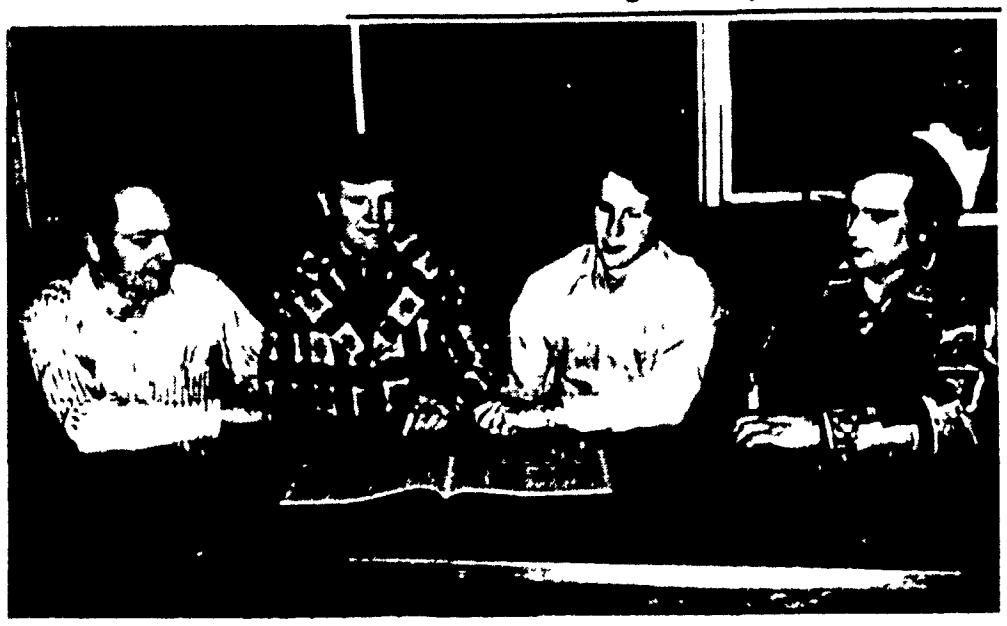
Remember, you need lots of room to stop on wintry roads, so keep speed down and plenty of following distance in traffic. Slow down well ahead of intersections, reminds the National Safety Council. They may be extra slick because of the polishing effect of stopping and starting traffic.

Careful While Driving During Warming Trends

Warming trends can lead to trouble while driving. Ice is twice as slippery at 30 degrees as it is at 0 degrees, says the National Safety Council. When most of the road is clear, watch for ice patches in shady spots, such as wooded spots and underpasses. If you hit one, hold the wheel steady and roll through. Jamming on the brakes will send you into a skid.

Don't Panic or Brake In a Skid

If you go into a skid while driving don't panic and don't brake. Steer in the direction the rear of the car is skidding. Don't oversteer. When you feel the car straighten out, turn wheels straight and keep rolling, suggested the National Safety Council.



E-town Young Farmer officers

Cattle decline recorded

U.S. cattle numbers as of Jan. 1 are at 128 million. That's down three per cent from a year ago and the first decline in the Jan. 1 cattle inventory since 1967, USDA reported last week.

Reason for the decline: That record cattle and calf slaughter last year. The cattle slaughter total, at 40.9 million, was up 11 pct. from a year earlier; the calf slaughter, at 5.2 million, was up 75 pct. from 1974. The combined total, at 46.1 million head, was 16 pct. above a year earlier.

Beef cows on farms on Jan. 1, at 43.7 million head, was down 4 pct. from a year earlier.

Milk cows, at 11.1 million head down only 1 pct. from a year earlier. But, it's still the lowest total since 1877.

Value per head of all cattle and calves averaged out at $190. That's up from the $159 of a year ago, but well below the record $293 average of Jan. 1, 1974.

Total value of all cattle and calves is seen at $24.3 billion. That's up 16 pct. from last year's $21.0 billion total, but down 35 pct. from the record $37.4 billion total of two years ago. And, except for last year, it was the lowest over-all total since 1971.

The Voice In The Wilderness

In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judaea,

And saying, Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand

For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight

Roundup Herbicide

ST. LOUIS - Monsanto Company's Roundup herbicide has received Environmental Protection Agency registration acceptance for use in cropping systems prior to emergence of corn, soybean, wheat, barley, oat and sorghum (milo) crops in the United States.

At the same time, the company announced that the Canadian government also has approved a registration covering the use of this herbicide in cropping systems prior to seeding of corn, soybean, wheat, barley and oat crops.

Roundup is a foliar-applied, nonselective weed control agent. According to Monsanto, more than 2,500 field tests in the last seven years indicate effective control of a broad spectrum of annual and perennial weeds of both grass and broadleaf species, including problem perennials with well established root systems such as Johnson grass, quackgrass, Canada thistle and bindweed.

Roundup is a water soluble formulation of the isopropylamine salt of glyphosate. It is spray applied when the weeds have reached a vigorous stage of growth, before the crop has emerged or after it has been harvested in the fall. When applied to the foliage of undesirable vegetation, the herbicide translocates through the plant tissue to the underground reproductive roots, resulting in total destruction of the weed.

Roundup is classified as a non-persistent herbicide and is inactivated when it comes in contact with the soil.

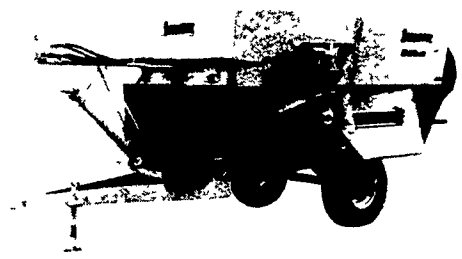
How to make more milk from the same amount of feed

The "balanced bite" is one key
The Schwartz Mixer Wagon is the other



Cows vary greatly in their individual preferences for one forage over another. So while some of your cows may be getting the diet they need to maintain peak production, others may be short-changing themselves .. getting plenty of protein perhaps, but not enough energy to balance it What can you do about it?

The Agway Total Mixed Ration

TMR is the best way yet devised for feeding a ration that's perfectly balanced for nutrient content. It eliminates cows' preferences.

But TMR feeding can be no better than the equipment used to mix the ration. Accurate measuring and thorough mixing are musts.

Most versatile way to feed TMR ...the Schwartz Mixer Wagon

It accurately proportions, thoroughly mixes, then transports and distributes nutrients in any prescribed amount and formulation. So it's easy to feed the right ration any place on your farm.

Triple augers tumble and turn feed end to end to perfectly blend liquid, granular or pelleted supplements into silage, chopped hay or ground grain. Five to seven minutes does the job. Controls are convenient—and positive. Solid construction assures trouble-free operation. Three sizes to choose from.

An Agway salesman will be happy to discuss TMR with you. He can also arrange a demonstration of the Schwartz Mixer Wagon. Call Agway today.

Charles Rohrer

Meet Penna.'s Outstanding Young Farmer

By DIETER KRIEG

PARADISE — A 35-year-old farmer who is happy with his chosen profession and satisfied with prices for his products was recently voted Pennsylvania's Outstanding Young Farmer by the Pennsylvania and United States Jaycees. He is Charles H. Rohrer, who operates a 265 acre hog - dairy - poultry farm near here in partnership with his 24-year-old brother, Allan.

Unlike many farmers today, Rohrer has no complaints about his work or the net returns of his business. Confident in himself, his family, and agriculture, he is convinced that God has blessed this nation and his individual situation. He believes strongly in the free enterprise system; says a farmer must learn to cope with the ups and downs of marketing situations; and considers farming to be one of the few careers in which there are always challenges and goals.

One of the keys to his success and happiness, he admits, is the partnership situation he has always enjoyed since he began farming 16 years ago. A 1958 graduate of Pequea Valley High School, he went into partnership with his father, (J. Arthur) in Jan. of 1959. Three years later his younger brother, Dick, joined the business and both boys gradually bought increasingly larger shares of their father's enterprise. In 1969, however, Dick decided to move on to the wide-open spaces of Alaska where he is now a hunting guide. He is, incidentally, probably the farthest-away subscriber to LANCASTER FARMING.

Charlie purchased his younger brother's share in the farming operation and the partnership with his father continued on close to 50-50 terms. Allan, the youngest of the three brothers, graduated from high school in 1969 and began helping out on the farm full-time which, in effect, kept the amount of man-power nearly the same as it had been when Dick was there. Five years later Allan decided to join as a partner, and this done, the elder Rohrer went into semi-retirement — although he is still quite active and helpful in getting chores taken care of.

"I prefer a family type partnership — or with the right type of individual," Charlie said without hesitation, it's just a simple matter of asking each others' opinion," Charlie said. As things stand now, Allan's primary interests are the dairy herd and all aspects of management and work connected with it. Charlie specializes in hogs, is strongly interested in the egg business, and does all the welding on the farm. But all decisions are shared nonetheless. Field work is also a joint affair, although special interests have cropped up here too. The purchase and maintenance of equipment — including the overhauling of gasoline-powered engines — is shared as well, as are days off and vacation time — with each giving or taking to make the best use of each partner's time and special talents or interests.

"Dad never put any pressure on us," Charlie recollected, "I never felt like I had to stay — it was my choice." He noted that the same was true of his brothers. "Dad helped us, but he didn't hand anything over on a silver spoon," he continued, "we had to earn all of our own money through projects — nothing was free, we didn't even get an allowance." The lessons have stuck, as Charlie considers America's free enterprise system to be one of his blessings.

Reflecting on his upbringing and past experiences, Rohrer advised youths to not leave the farm too quickly — "I've seen too many examples of boys leaving and then their Dad selling out." He points out that oftentimes the boys decide later to farm, but by then it's too late. "If you have an opportunity to farm, take it, it's a great life," he affirmed.

The Rohrer Brothers' 265-acre spread actually consists of two farms, both of which join each other approximately four miles east of Strasburg. The second farm, including an old 17-room estate home, was purchased by Charlie several years ago. With both partners actively managing the business, and the elder Rohrer pitching in with field work, etc., the trio takes care of 15,000 laying hens, 50 Holstein cows, 40 head of youngstock, and approximately 250 hogs. All but 15 acres of their land is tillable, with corn, alfalfa, and wheat being the main crops. Charlie's wife, Kay, keeps the record books in order.

But there's more to farming than physical labor. "A farmer today needs to have access to a good accountant, banker and lawyer," the award recipient advised. Furthermore, he recommends having a good veterinarian and feed representative and using their services wisely. "Also take advantage of the services from the extension office and soil conservation people," Rohrer continued, "that's what they're there for."

Turning his thoughts over to his religious convictions, Rohrer said: "God has blessed our nation — it was founded on religious freedom and the free enterprise spirit. I personally know that God has blessed our operation — good results always don't just happen. I believe that if I'm faithful to Him, He will be faithful to me — this is a very definite part of my life. I ask for wisdom in the morning and give thanks for a good day in the evening." A Jaycees member for a number of years and a former president of the Pequea Valley chapter, he says he has found a true meaning in the first line of the Jaycee Creed: "Faith in God adds meaning and purpose to human life."

Farming to Charlie is a never-ending challenge and quest for goals. "It's like the Olympics," he explained, "they keep pushing on and on and you'd think there's a limit as to how fast that mile can be run, but they keep breaking records."

Outgoing, friendly, and enthusiastic, Charlie finds that the same is true in farming. "You're never without a goal," he said quite simply. "Whether it's breeding, feeding, or management, we're always striving to improve upon them. This concept of reaching for higher goals not only makes farming more worthwhile for Charlie, he considers it to be a necessity of a healthy economic system.

"Today's farmer is being rewarded for his efforts from a financial standpoint," Charlie declared. "We have to take the ups and downs and need some poor years to keep the supply situation in balance. Too many farmers forget their good years. If a farmer looked at his three-year average, he'd be surprised if all three years were bad." Rohrer believes that some bad years are essential to maintain a steady relationship between supply and demand and to keep producers on their toes. "Even if things really get bad, you can stay in business if you're in the top ten per cent — there's no way you can go broke," he exclaimed. Management is the key factor — but that alone won't do it either, it must be combined with work.

Work is a subject Rohrer, who was an Outstanding Young Cooperator for Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative two years ago, can speak on for more than a few minutes. "Agriculture is one of the few businesses where increased production comes about as a result of increased efficiency," he began. "We're going for bigger volume and less man-hours when pretty near everyone else (other forms of business) is going the other way. In other segments of our economy it's often true that a worker only gives his employer four hours' worth of work in an eight-hour day, and then he still thinks he's overworked!" Critical of both unions and government fiscal irresponsibility, he blames both of these giants for inflation.

Rohrer is bullish on American agriculture, however. "We're a big oasis in the middle of a hungry world," he exclaimed. "The rest of the world is relying more and more on us for food. Russia has land but can't produce . . . Japan doesn't have enough ground to be able to feed herself. Agriculture is the main thing we have in abundance and it's what keeps our international trade in the black. Besides that, what do we have that the Japanese can't produce cheaper?" he asked. "And they can do it because they're willing to give nine hours' worth of work in an eight-hour day."

Modest about his accomplishments (he says that there are many farmers in the state who are at least as good or better than he is), and generous in his attitude towards the truly needy both here and abroad, Rohrer is an outspoken critic of government aid to loafers at home and the wrong hands abroad. He would like to see our abundance of food become more readily available to those who need it — and without so many political connections. But he adds that using our agricultural strength as leverage against Arab cartels and Soviet aggression would be a good idea. He is steadfastly opposed to present federal programs whereby nearly "everyone who holds his hand out gets food stamps."

His other major concerns about American agriculture entail land use and the image some city folks have of farmers. Bothered by the amount of development taking place in prime farming regions such as Lancaster County, Rohrer sees no reason why manufacturers can't go to areas less suitable for farming. "If the companies are worried about not having people in those areas, they needn't be, because people will go where the jobs are." Furthermore, he cites the building of "model cities" and transportation as being in line with industry moving away from farming regions. Priority land-use legislation is needed, he said.

As for the public image problem, Rohrer admits it's not nearly as bad now as it used to be, but it still bothers him when farmers are considered "dumb." He describes farming as a business which has to be managed properly and kept after — "we can't be dumb farmers or we'll never make it" — and wishes more people would realize this fact.

Prices for farm products are leaving producers with a better profit margin today than they have had in many years, according to Rohrer. And when a farmer does experience a loss, he says it's due sometimes to his holding out too long for an even higher price which then eventually leaves him holding an empty bag. Rohrer preaches caution to those who would want farm prices to rise even more at this time since it could lead to farmers pricing themselves right out of a market. In saying this, he does acknowledge that producers' costs are continuing to climb, and therefore their receipts should go up accordingly — but for now things look good enough.

"I'm happy with our way of life," he said with a smile. His future plans might include expanding the chicken business and hog operation. "I'm not interested in milking more cows . . . just better cows," he added. Reasons for that are that a larger herd would require too much remodeling in his barn and his records show that there's more money to be made with chickens. While not his chief interest, the dairy herd offers him challenges and satisfactions which are not as readily attained (on a practical basis) with his hogs and chickens since neither is a beginning to end set-up. "I like to take a cow and be able to breed a better cow through her, as opposed to buying better animals . . . anyone can do that," he said.

Currently serving as president of District 3 for Inter-State Milk Producers, and vice chairman of that cooperative's Young Cooperator program, Rohrer received his prestigious award on the basis of his farming accomplishments, community service, and conservation practices. His farm is strip contoured and incorporates a waterway and diversion ditches. Cover crops and regular soil tests are also a part of the Rohrer Brothers' farming program.

Happy with his work and results, Rohrer was asked if he would ever consider leaving the farm. The obvious answer was "no," unless he felt there was a genuine leading from God or if he were physically incapable of doing the work. "There's nothing else I'd rather do regardless of pay," he said happily. He and his wife travel to Starksville, Miss. next month to participate in the national OYF contest.

COST CUTTER
The cost of diesel fuel has jumped nearly 70 percent since October, 1973 and it's still about three cents a gallon cheaper than gasoline. Higher fuel costs call for a closer look at total operating costs when you buy engines. Deutz air-cooled engines use 20 to 40 percent less fuel than most water-cooled diesel engines - far less than gasoline engines. And they are competitively priced. So hadn't you better buy or specify the cost cutter - Deutz? 10 to 500 bhp.

Labor sec. opposes fair work

By Reed Larson

Of all the people the President could have selected to succeed John Durlop as secretary of labor, few could have been worse for the average wage-earner than Willie Julian Usery, Jr.

Usery does have plenty of experience in the federal bureaucracy. He was named assistant secretary of labor for labor-management relations in February 1969. In February 1973 he was appointed director of the Federal Mediation & Conciliation Service, and for several years has also served as the President's chief "labor" troubleshooter – first with President Nixon and now with President Ford.

And he's well-liked in official union circles, having been a long-time organizer for the giant Machinists union, and a former grand lodge representative.

On the surface he would appear to be not an especially offensive choice, right? Wrong!

Usery's loyalties lie strictly with Big Labor and the policies of the bosses of Big Labor. He's fanatically dedicated to the proposition that what's good for George Meany is good for America, he's equally dedicated to the proposition that workers who refuse to join unwanted unions should be canned from their jobs.

It was Usery, for example, who in 1974 engineered a settlement between the Bell System companies and CWA union chieftains which for the first time imposed compulsory unionism on telephone company workers across the country despite vocal rank-and-file objections. It was what the union bosses wanted, it was their price for averting a long and costly strike against the phone companies; so Usery sold out 60,000 long-time, loyal Bell employees who the company had been protecting against unwanted union membership since the union came on the scene, against their objections, several years ago.

Usery attempted to arrange a similar compulsory unionism deal a few months later when the president of the National Football League Players Association threatened to end the season prematurely with a league-wide strike. At first just a few, and then dozens, and hundreds of players said no – and returned voluntarily to the playing field. If that's all that stood between playing and not playing, they wanted no part of it.

Whenever Usery has had the chance, he has consistently and with unrelenting dedication traded away the rights of working people in the false name of "labor peace."

Usery feels everyone should be a union member, and if a worker won't join voluntarily, he should be forced to join. He stands firmly opposed to Right to Work laws. He has said repeatedly that public employees – federal, state, local, at all levels of government – should also be required to accept unwanted union representation and pay money to the unwanted unions as a condition of working for their own government.

We really need not look any further than a speech Usery made in 1965 at a New York Machinists union seminar (on, what else, destroying Right to Work laws). Wrote the union's own newspaper, THE MACHINIST, on April 5, 1965, "Usery told the New Yorkers that the same group of bigots who deny voting rights to Negroes are the most vehement defenders of ... 'Right to Work' laws."

Public opinion studies have consistently shown that the vast majority of Americans favor the Right to Work principle of voluntary unionism. It's Usery's unfortunate opinion that these people are anti-black "bigots," including (explain this) the more than 50 percent of the black community and the many black opinion leaders who support Right to Work.

Mr. Usery is a rotten choice for an important and sensitive job. The President of the United States has done a disservice to the nation's 80,000,000 wage-earners.

Making Soybean milk

Editor's note: The following article was authored by Moses Chu of Paradise, Pa. Chu is quite familiar with the use of soybeans and has offered his advice on making soybean milk and curd for a protein source.

Many people believe that over eating red meats and dairy products can lead to the risk of high levels of cholesterol. This excessive cholesterol has often been linked to increasing the incidence of heart disease, especially for those people over 50 and for younger people who are overweight. Improving the diet seems to be an urgent matter but what other sources of protein are to be considered? The answer for some has been soybeans.

Soybeans are hard to digest in their native state but the milk and curd from them have been used for a protein source. Making the curd and milk is relatively simple if you follow instructions suggested.

Objects needed include a dish and food grinder along with two pieces of cloth one 18 x 18 inches and the other 28 x 28 inches.

Take two pounds of soybeans (free from stones and gravel) and soak the beans in water for at least eight hours. Drain the water. The beans should now weigh about five pounds. Grind the beans and repeat to get them very fine. Place ½ gallon of water in a pot. Mix well and squeeze the milk out of the beans using the larger cloth as a strainer. Bring milk to boiling point. Serve the milk following boiling or cooled.

For soybean curd put four - five tablespoonsful of vinegar into the milk and stir gently. Put the smaller cloth over a dish and pour milk into it. Drain water which contains vinegar, wrap up the curd and press. Curd will be ready in a few minutes. The whole process takes about 1 hour.

From two pounds of beans you can easily get one pound of curd.

Do not throw any of the residue away as it can be used for soil conditioning and fertilizer. Further information can be obtained by calling 717-687-8751.

Tractor pullers give trophies

BIRD-IN-HAND - The Southeastern Tractor Pullers Association met here a week ago for their annual awards banquet with approximately 125 people in attendance. The previous pulling season was summarized and members were given a brief resume on what they can expect this year. In short, 1976 is to offer more pulles, more tractors and the opportunity for the best season to date.

The awards presented went to the top three in each of 11 classes. They were: 5000 pound stock - 1. Lesley Stauffer, Jim Brubaker, 3. Ray Brubaker; 7000 pound stock - 1. Amos Stauffer, 2. Vernon Yoder, 3. Wes Stauffer; 9000 pound stock - 1. Jim Brubaker, 2. Amos Stauffer, 3. Vernon Yoder; 12000 pound stock - 1. Jim Brubaker, 2. Tim Stauffer.

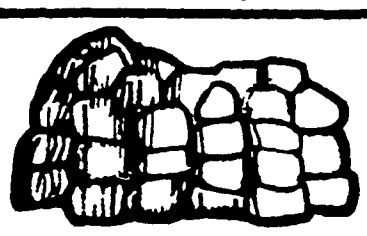
In super-stock competition, the drivers placed as follows: 5000 pound - 1. Dale Smoker, 2. Charles Welsh, 3. Carl Spickler; 7000 pounds - Marlin Brubaker, 2. Mark Stauffer, 3. Charles Welsh; 9000 pounds - 1. Mike Wright, 2. Henry Griest, 3. Marlin Brubaker; 12000 pounds - Mike Wright, 2. Harry Griest, 3. Amos Stauffer.

Modified classes - 5000 pound: 1. Elwood Flowers, 2. Gary Mills, 3. Galen Spickler; 7000 pound: 1. Les Houck, 2. Richard Zimmerman, 3. Lester Landis; 9000 pound: 1. Les Houck, 2. Jerry Hess, 3. Richard Zimmerman.

Gifts of appreciation for their services to the organization were presented to: John Charles, track official; Dave Becker, secretary; Jerry Hershey, vice president and announcer; Amos Stauffer, scales and track preparation: Dan Brubaker, sled maintenance; Les Houck, national secretary and state sec.-treasurer; Ike Hostetter, bookkeeping; Elvin Arment, advertising; Barbara Yoder and Verna Yost, administrative assistants; and Marlin Brubaker, president of the Southeastern Pa. Tractor Pullers.

An elections of officers for 1976 was held with Brubaker gaining another term as president; Jerry Hershey, vice vice president; Isaac Hostetter, treasurer; and Dave Becker, treasurer. Eby Hershey and Dale Smoker were elected to serve as directors for two years. They join Tony Stauffer and Galen Spickler who were elected a year ago.

Newly elected officers of the Southeast Pa. Tractor Pullers are Marlin Brubaker, president (seated); and l. to r. Dave Becker, secretary; Jerry Hershey, vice president; and Isaac Hostetter, treasurer.



H—2510 HT BONUS

This single cross is packed with high yield potential! It features medium stalk height with low ears. Stalk quality is excellent. H-2510 has bred in tolerance to leaf diseases, and shows good early vigor. A healthy hybrid with good root anchorage. Excellent combine corn, that picks well also.

H—2580 HT BONUS

A hybrid with erect leaves, long ears, excellent seed quality and test weight. This hybrid has excellent standability and dries down rapidly in the fall. It picks clean and combines easily, and has resistance to leaf diseases and stalk rot. High yield performance.

H—2666 HT BONUS

A top yielder. High leaf blight tolerance. Strong stalks and roots. Good combine or picker corn. Adaptable to a wide variety of growing conditions. Excellent grain quality and high test weight.

H—2750 HT BONUS

Here's a truly dual-purpose hybrid that will make lots of silage or lots of grain. H-2750 features big, showy ears. Strong stalks and good roots make it stand up until harvest. This hybrid has good MDM tolerance as well as leaf disease resistance. A beauty to grow over a wide area of the cornbelt.

What's New

New Chromalox Brood-A-Rador

Chicks, pullets, even piglets, may not realize they are basking in the warmth of modern electric heat, but the poultryman and farmer will appreciate the ease of installation and operating efficiency of the Chromalox R Brood-A-Rador - a new electric poultry and livestock brooder just introduced to the market.

Developed by the Edwin L. Wiegand Division, Emerson Electric Co. the Brood-A-Rador is equally suitable for brooding and farrowing applications, and provides clean electric heat without noise of fumes. Its rigid aluminum construction and consequent light weight make the Brood-A-Rador easy to suspend in any desired indoor location.

Heat is supplied by one Chromalox single-ended .475" diameter alloy sheathed element mounted in a polished aluminum reflector. The element terminates in a moisture-resistant box. Chain and "S" hooks are supplied with the unit. A nickel plated protective grill is an additional safety feature.

The Brood-A-Rador is available from stock in 120, 208 or 240 volts, all with a BTU rating of 4094. They are UL listed for indoor use in brooding and farrowing applications.

Further information is contained in Bulletin PG129 available from the Edwin L. Wiegand Division, Emerson Electric Co., 7500 Thomas Boulevard, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15208.

WATER ABSORBENTS AND DETECTORS

Potter Water-Eater cartridges have the unique ability to remove water from oil and other petroleum products both simply and automatically. If not removed, water trapped in tanks of petroleum products can cause contamination and corrosion damage. Water-Eaters allow water to be removed with no loss of product, which is not possible when pumps are used to remove accumulated water; they also save the time and labor required for emptying tanks completely. Water-Eaters can also be used to confirm the presence of water where it is suspected.

More complete information on this product may be obtained from Potter Industries, 421 Dover Drive, Des Plaines, Illinois 60018.

SPECIAL SPRING OFFER

CLIP AND SAVE

Mr. Farmer:

If you are now using a silage fermentation control product you know that they will improve the quality of the ferment, increase nutrient levels, extend the feeding capacity of the silo, plus many other fine extras. And if you have never tried these products now is the time. You'll want to clip and save this ad so when you are ready to order you will be guaranteed this special spring price.

Envesto is the only supplier of fermentation control products that can offer you the products from each of three distinct formulations that are "TOPS" in their classes. One of our products will fit into your management program.

Wayne® Care-Gram

Hay or pasture... even with oats... can't go it alone.

Wayne Front Runner Horse Krunch is the total balancer high in taste appeal that adds the extra energy your horses don't get from hay or pasture alone.

Front Runner furnishes ample vitamins, minerals and protein. Plus the energy of top quality grains. Pure cane molasses provides flavor that horses love.

Front Runner is a clean, easy-to-handle feed. The grains are crimped or cracked.

Vitamins, minerals and other fine particle ingredients are combined into small pellets. Let your Wayne Dealer show you a sample. If you don't know who he is, write Allied Mills, Inc., 110 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60606.

Your Wayne Dealer cares. That's what makes the difference.

AGWAY

If she's not fresh at 24 months, you lose $60 to $70 EVERY MONTH UNTIL SHE CALVES

Agway total calf rations TCR I and TCR II can bring her to breeding weight by 14 months

The Total Calf Ration Program was researched and developed at the Agway Farm Research Center, and supported by a field study on three dairy farms. A total of 288 animals were involved. Significant findings:

- Heifers reached breeding weight of 750 lbs. by 14 months of age
- They were nearly an inch taller than heifers grown on a conventional program —indicating that skeletal growth was obtained without fattening
- Forage saved on every six heifers raised on TCR I & II was enough to provide the yearly forage requirements of one milking cow

TCR I is for heifers from birth through five months, and TCR II for six through nine months. It is a pelleted, complete, self-fed ration containing all the protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins needed for optimum growth of the young heifer and development of the rumen.

TCR I and TCR II. Only from Agway.

Dairy executive leads active life

By Sally Bair
Farm Feature Writer

Phyllis Marks is truly a woman of many talents and each one she puts to use wholeheartedly, with an obvious zest for living a full and fulfilling life.

Phyllis, who resides at 1042 Olde Hickory Road with her husband Edmund L., is quite happily and equally a homemaker and a career woman. Both jobs and her many outside interests leave her with little free time, but she doesn't mind having a full schedule because as she says, "I work much better under pressure."

The interview with Phyllis evolved from an announcement in the business section of the daily paper - "Dairy Trade Group Executive," the headline read. Since there are not many female dairy executives, it sounded enticing.

On January 1 Phyllis was named executive secretary for the Philadelphia Dairy Mixers, Inc., an association of people who sell supplies to the dairy industry. Although the group may not be well-known in this area, it covers a territory from south New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland as far west as York and as far north as Allentown. Basically, Phyllis said, it is centered in the Philadelphia area.

The members supply to dairies paper products, equipment and other supplies necessary to put dairy products before the consumer. Phyllis explained that her husband, who is a member, sells fruits and flavors and buttermilk flakes to dairies.

The group meets four times annually, mostly "to exchange ideas." Phyllis said, "They learn a lot from each other. Many interesting things come out of their discussions." Phyllis's job entails keeping up the membership list, sending dues and meetings notices and handling new member applications.

This, of course, is not a full-time job, so in her more regular career Phyllis is a sales representative for the John-David Advertising Specialty Company. Her area is "all of Lancaster County," and her work is calling on local businesses and offering them business forms, pens, pencils and any one of over 100,000 specialty items. The list is long and varied, and includes pennants, American flags, key chains, business cards, etc. Phyllis claims her company really does have something for everyone and says, "I love making cold calls. I have a great time. Mostly I just go from business to business."

Finding clients she said is "mostly a matter of searching" and keeping up-to-date on coming events. She is contacting all announced candidates for election and offering them some of her items. Since she works on commission, she sets her own hours, but points out, "If I don't work, I don't get paid." She said she usually works two or three days a week.

So much for her paid employment. Phyllis's time is spent in service to many interesting and varied organizations.

She is vice-president of the Conestoga Valley Guild of the Pennsylvania Craftsmen Guild. The Guild, she explained, is open to everyone who has an original craft. She reeled off a list of eligible crafts - leather craft, pottery, fraktur, furniture stenciling, wood carving, jewelry making and the like.

The Guild meets once a month, and members usually have the opportunity to learn a craft from another member. One large event in which the local chapter is involved in the annual Pennsylvania Craftsmen state fair which will be held at Franklin and Marshall College for four days this August. The local Guild must make the arrangements, including housing, and registration for this state event.

Her craft is quilling, something which has become very popular in this area, although according to Phyllis, interest has peaked and is now going downhill.

Phyllis says she's been quilling for three years, and adds, "It's easy to learn." But she does admit that it is "time consuming, since there may be 400-500 pieces in one picture."

In addition to creating pictures to sell, she also gives lessons privately in her home. In addition, she has written a book - which she declares will be her last venture in publishing. The book tells about quilling and has eleven snowflake designs for the reader to create.

Phyllis Marks leads a busy life

She prefers to sell her designs through craft shows. She said, "They must be reasonably priced or they won't sell," and explained that if she sells them through someone else, with the commission, the price becomes too high and an item won't sell.

Besides the fact that direct selling is more profitable Phyllis says it's a real thrill for her to demonstrate at craft shows. She said, "People like to watch and then purchase something you've made. They can relate better if they see the product being made." She said she often gives the history of her craft and just enjoys talking with the people who stop by to see a demonstration of her talents.

Mostly Phyllis does quilled pictures, but she has also done some matched stationery. And since acrylic painting is another of her interests, she is now creating a combination of a painted design on canvas with an addition in quilling. For example, she said she has made a quilled bird on a painted tree.

She sums up her interest in crafts by saying, "I enjoy working with my hands. My next undertaking will be fraktur and scherenschnitte."

Stitchery, ceramics and embroidery are other crafts Phyllis enjoys with her talented hands, but sewing is probably her biggest interest. "My mother taught me to sew," she said, "and I picked up sewing hints along the way." Since I'm rather tall, it has always been difficult to get clothes to fit. I enjoy designing my own clothes."

Her talent with her hands is one reason why she majored in textile design at the Colorado State University in her native Colorado. And, although she has never been employed in that field, she says she has put her education to work in other ways.

In explaining her abilities in so many different areas, she said, "I was a Girl Scout leader for six years and you can't be a Scout leader without learning how to do a lot of things."

The Philanthropic Education Organization (PEO) is another group to which Phyllis devotes considerable time. She has been a member of the organization for 26 years, and she explained, "It is run like a sorority, with members joining by invitation. It is 105 years old, the second oldest women's organization in the United States. The seven women who founded it decided not to use Greek letters."

Locally, Phyllis said, there are three chapters, and she is a member of Chapter BA. The "sorority" is really quite ambitious, because nationally it owns a college - Cottey Junior College in Nevada, Missouri.

Phyllis proudly says, "It is a liberal arts college and accredited, and 90 percent of the graduates go on to get a four year degree." To run the college, each of the 190,000 members of the PEO in the United States and Canada contribute $14 annually.

There are three educational thrusts of the group, Phyllis explained. There is an educational loan fund from which a qualified applicant can get $900 a semester to be paid back after graduation at 6 percent interest.

There is an International Peace Scholarship which will supply an outright scholarship to a deserving foreign girl who wants to study for a master's or a doctorate. There is a stipulation, Phyllis said, that the girl must return to her own country upon completion of her education.

Valentine's Day brings special thoughts

By MELISSA PIPER

Valentine's Day is always a time for remembering the people we cherish, but I also like to think of it as a time to reflect on the good things in life. During the last few years, I have made it a point to set aside February 14 as a day to think of all the good things that have happened to me throughout the year and to let the hurt, anger and frustration dwindle for 24 hours.

The past two years have been especially interesting and exciting for me as a newcomer to the southeastern Pa. area. Covering events and doing interviews have placed me in many situations and have given me an opportunity to meet hundreds of new people.

It's not always an easy task to learn all the cultural trends about a new area in a short time but the people in Lancaster Farming's coverage area, certainly bolstered my courage! And while the traveling and work has kept me too busy at times to smile, there are many incidents that will brighten my Valentine's Day this year!

One incident which always brings a smile is the time I was presented a very unusual sandwich!

While I was at a picnic this summer, the host brought me a long bun which was filled, he said, with the "best" cut of barbequed pork he had. I gladly accepted the sandwich but with further investigation found that the "best cut" happened to be the pig's tail smothered in lots of barbeque sauce!

On one occasion I also provided much of the entertainment for a number of dairy farmers as I lost my ticket for their banquet - after I had eaten! It took a lot of explaining to get out of that situation especially to a Guernsey breeder from the southern end of Lancaster County. And before I was left to rest, the whole room had burst into laughter!

One particular incident reminds me that our so-called "bad days" are not always as awful as they seem. It was one of those mornings that nothing had gone right and as I searched the countryside for pictures and a story in the afternoon, I met with little success. Until I found a farmer busily chopping corn in his field. He was too far away to talk but as I finished taking a series of pictures of his work, and headed back to my car, he gave me a hearty wave and smile which certainly brightened my day!

I am thankful for all the pleasant experiences I have had in this area and for the farming and agribusiness people who have really been great. I'll always remember with gentle thoughts those people who have included me at their dinner table, allowed me to work on their farms and have taken their time to discuss agriculture and many other topics with this inquisitive reporter.

Yes, Valentine's Day has a special meaning for me and I'm looking forward to many more!

There is also a continuing education project, a new one for PEO. Its purpose, Phyllis explained, is to provide monies to the heads of families who want to further their education. Often it goes to people who have no other way to obtain scholarships.

Phyllis devotes some time to her church, the Unitarian Church of Lancaster, in the role of community relations director. As such she does publicity for the many events they schedule.

Much of Phyllis's work parallels work which her husband does. For instance, she is executive director of the Dairy Mixers group and he is a member, although she states, "He had nothing to do with my getting the job. He was as surprised as I was when I was approached." He writes a newsletter for the Unitarian Church and he is "Chief Laird" for the Association of Susquehanna Scots of which Phyllis is a "Lass."

They also jointly have a mail order business for pewter buttons, spoons, porringers and splint boxes. The name of the business is Ark Creations.

Phyllis says enthusiastically that her marriage after 27 years is as though they are still on a honeymoon. She said, "We communicate a lot." Part of the success she said is, that "I really believe couples should have separate interests; after all each is an individual. I firmly believe a man should be able to golf on Saturday morning." She added, "We work at the marriage together and share the responsibilities of the house. And, my husband spoils me." Another secret is, "We work together as a team, and we are each other's best friends."

The Marks have two grown children who are making lives for themselves in Idaho and New York, and at this stage in her life Phyllis is extremely gregarious and has a great love of people.

Part of her ease in talking with people one would suspect comes from the fact that she has lived in six different states with her husband, and even had a stint as Welcome Wagon hostess in Lewisburg.

But, Phyllis says, "I was once very shy and introverted. I changed after our daughter died of leukemia." Her daughter was six at the time, and Phyllis admits that it took the family several years to get over the grief.

But she said, "We realized that life is too short. Life is for the living."

She explained part of the doctrine of the Unitarian Church which is "God is love." She said, "We are encouraged to think for ourselves and to feel that God is within us and it is up to us as individuals to make something of our lives. You have the power to do anything you want."

About her philosophy she added, "We firmly believe that you can benefit from all your experiences, and that everything happens for the best no matter how disastrous it seems at the time."

Now she said it doesn't bother her at all to speak before a group, and she really enjoys meeting people. "I've learned there are a lot of wonderful people out there and you can learn something from each one and they can learn something from you."

Rocking Chairs Revived

The rocking chair of Early Americana has found a new life in Bicentennial settings. Many such items of the past have been brought out of hiding the past few years.

Extension specialists at The Pennsylvania State University say don't leave an old rocker in the cellar or attic simply because the finish is scratched or marred. Hardware and department stores offer many antiquing kits and furniture repair products which can turn even a 19th century relic into a piece of furniture you'll be proud to display and use.

An assortment of rocking chair pads, done in provincial prints or solid fabrics are also available to add new color and comfort.

Or consider making your own washable slipcovers. Buy or sew covers with zippers or snap openings. That way, you can remove them for laundering and they'll require no ironing if you place them back on the cushions while slightly damp.

With a little thought and imagination, a rocking chair can become one of the popular "family members" for TV viewing, sewing, reading or just relaxing.

Burglar-Proof Your Home

Used to be no one ever thought of locking a door. But that era of security has gone. Today, just locking doors is often not enough to protect your home and your possessions from thieves. Burglary is the fastest growing crime in the United States, and robbery is second.

Extension specialists at The Pennsylvania State University point out that burglary is breaking and entering someone else's property without threat of personal harm. Robbery is defined as stealing with the actual use of violence or the threat of it.

According to a leading magazine, the average housebreaker takes home about 25,000 dollars a year of our money, tax-free. His cousin, the hotel burglar, nets as much as 75,000 dollars.

Elaborate alarm systems are essential in some cases, but they are expensive. Before you invest in equipment you may not need, check your home security against this protection outline:

- Are all doors and windows on the ground floor, and others that are easily accessible, locked at all times?
- Are window air conditioners anchored from the inside?
- Is there enough lighting outside your home to enable you to read a wristwatch easily?
- Do you leave interior lights on when you're away from home?

One of the best ways to keep a potential thief from detecting your absence is to set a series of inexpensive automatic timers to simulate your regular routine by turning lights on and off.

You should also arrange for mail and newspapers to be picked up or held until your return. And don't let garbage sit for an extended period. Thieves are extremely observant of such clues.

Thieves are also notorious for checking the usual hiding spots for spare keys. Don't leave keys under doormats, in garages, on doorsills, or anywhere else. If you think the porch planter would be a convenient spot for an extra key, just in case, a burglar might think so, too.

If you're often away from home for periods of time, you might want to check on house sitting services if they are available in your area. Or see if the local police will make a point of checking your house.

Above all else, lock your door — even if you're only stepping next door for a minute. If after following this advice, you still don't feel completely safe, call the police. Some police departments will send crime prevention officers to inspect homes and offer guidelines for maximum protection.

Tips for kitchen safety

There's no safer place than the comfort of your own home — or so you think. Actually, danger lurks right in your kitchen! To help you avoid big accidents as well as little mishaps, follow these helpful tips.

Load your dishwasher with sharp utensils pointed down, and store kitchen knives in racks which don't expose the edges. When chopping food, use a cutting block and always cut away from you. Remember to put the canned food lids inside the cans before throwing them away. This way, you won't get a surprise cut as you grab the trash bag.

Store household cleaning products and chemicals in a locked kitchen cabinet. And avoid using hazardous chemicals when possible.

For example, use non-chemical Drain Power instead of acid or lye drain openers which can cause serious injuries and burns if they come in contact with skin. Drain Power is safe to store, too, since it takes 30 pounds of pressure to discharge the contents and cannot be easily activated by children.

Never stand on a chair or a box to reach high places. Either one could slip out from under you — especially as you lean forward or to one side. If possible, take only one item down at a time, keeping one hand free to catch yourself if you lose your balance.

Follow these suggestions and mix them with a little common sense. It's a recipe for safety in your kitchen.

Energy - a popular subject

Song writers frequently write about the "moon and stars," but it's the "earth and sun" that interests energy conservationists most.

With many of our natural resources being used up at an alarming rate, science is looking more and more toward the sun for energy answers. If the tremendous energy given off by the sun could effectively be harnessed for use by man, our energy problems would quickly disappear. Consider this:

The amount of solar energy streaming toward the earth in just one day equals the energy that could be produced by burning 550 billion tons of coal.

It's been estimated enough solar energy falls on the United States every 20 minutes to meet the country's power needs for one year.

Sizing Up The Sun

To give you some idea of the size of the sun — it's a giant among men. If the sun were the size of a skyscraper, the earth would be the size of a man. (And, the moon would be the size of a cocker spaniel standing next to the man.)

Unfortunately, even with science working on the problem, it's going to be awhile before sun power solves our energy needs.

In the meantime, these tips should help you save energy at home every day — not to mention "money."

- Keep windows tightly closed near your thermostat. Remember, it's the temperature at the thermostat that determines the operation of your heating (and cooling) system — turning it off and on.
- Teach your family to be "watt-watchers." Turn off lights, radios, TV's, etc. when leaving a room. (All kids love games. Why not make children "Official Watt-Watchers" at your house?)
- Save on short trips with the car. Shop by telephone.

And, More Tips

- Does your home or apartment have radiators? If you place a sheet of aluminum or aluminum foil against the wall behind the steam or hot water radiators, the aluminum will reflect heat into a room.
- The principle of "reflective heat" is why you should install reflective film on windows. The film insulates against heat trying to escape through windows — helps keep a room warmer, while using less heat.

Activities

Society 1

Farm Women Society 1 met recently and donated $25 to the Lititz Warwick Community Chest. Members were reminded of the trip to the Philadelphia Flower Show on March 9. The ticket is $6 which includes admission. Mrs. Daniel Brubaker is taking reservations.

The next meeting will be March 6 at 1:30 p.m.

Society 22

Society of Farm Women 22 met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Weller, Willow Street, with Mrs. Lloyd Herr acting as co-hostess.

A fascinating program on exotic plants was presented by Jack Matthews of Matthews Brothers florists in Strasburg. He showed the group many beautiful orchid varieties which are suitable for the home.

He also answered specific questions about members' ailing house plants and made suggestions about the care and selection of plants. He said that a proper moisture balance is important and that plants need a preventive spraying program to control insects. He also recommended washing off house plants once a month, including the undersides of leaves. Adding the proper fertilizer solution will also make for healthier houseplants.

There was a discussion of the Spring Rally to be held May 12 in Gettysburg and also of the selection of a County Project.

The next meeting will be held March 9 at 1:00 p.m. at the Willow Street United Church of Christ Church at which time Society 9 will be entertained. Mrs. Melvin Lauver of Akron will speak on the Parable of the Sourdough.

Home on the Range

Our bicentennial and centennial recipes requests have certainly sparked a lot of interest! We are receiving a number of these older recipes and will try to feature as many of them per week as we can.

This week we have a special recipe that was included in the Homemaker's Newsletter from Berks County. The recipe is one from Mary Todd Lincoln's cookbook and was supposedly Abe Lincoln's favorite cake! We hope you'll give it a try.

xxx

Abe Lincoln's Favorite Cake

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
3 cups flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup chopped hickory nuts
¼ tsp. salt
6 egg whites

Cream butter and sugar lightly. Sift flour and baking powder together and add with milk to first mixture. Add nuts and vanilla. Fold in beaten whites of egg. Add salt. Bake in 3 eight or nine inch pans, in moderate oven (350 degrees).

Recipe Source - unknown. Provided by Fay Strickler, Berks Co. Extension.

xxx

Granola

7 cups oatmeal
1 cup raw wheat germ
1 cup unsweeteneed grated coconut
½ cup sesame seeds
½ cup raw sunflower seeds
½ cup oil
½ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon vanilla
¾ cup honey

Mix ingredients and spread evenly on several cookie sheets. Bake at 325 degrees stirring about every 15 minutes. Bake until dry.

Mifflinburg, Pa.

xxx

Pecan Pies

1 bar butter
3 ounces cream cheese
1 cup flour

Mix and divide into 24 balls and press into small muffin tins. Mix 1 cup pecans chopped or ground, 1 egg, ¾ cup brown sugar and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Add few drops of vanilla.

Bake for 350 degrees for 15 minutes then reduce to 250 degrees for 10 minutes.

Surprise Cookies

1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
1 egg
½ cup milk
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix, roll thin and shape. Put cookies in buttered pans and place a teaspoon of filling on each not allowing it to spread on the edge, place another cookie gently on top and bake in moderate oven.

For filling: combine 1 cup chopped raisins, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon flour and ½ cup water. Cook until thick stirring constantly.

xxx

Meat Loaf

3 pounds ground beef
1 cup cracker crumbs
2 eggs
1 cup catsup
½ cup tomato juice
salt and pepper to taste

Mix well and form into a loaf or roll. Cover with bacon slices. Pour tomato juice over the meat and bake at 375 degrees for two hours.

xxx

Corn Pudding

3 eggs
1 tablespoon grated onions
¼ cup finely chopped green peppers
1 pimento chopped fine
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 cups cream style canned corn
2 cups scalded milk
paprika

Beat eggs slightly, add the milk, sugar and the salt. Combine corn with other ingredients and add to the milk mixture. Mix well. Turn into a buttered casserole and bake at 325 degrees for one hour. Serves 6.

Children's medicine important

Despite the amount of noise screaming toddlers can generate when they are unhappy, the fact is that youngsters have very tiny lungs. And that is why suffocation is such an ever-present danger for small children, says Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and former medical director of the Prudential Insurance Co.

"Parents must always be on guard," warns Dr. Domm, "since it takes only seconds for a child to suffocate."

Plastic bags are one of the chief suffocation hazards, according to Dr. Domm. Since many accidents occur when children are playing with bags that have already been discarded, he advises parents to puncture the bags in several places before disposing of them.

"Out-of-use refrigerators are often deadly as well," cautions Dr. Domm. "Even more so than plastic bags they are tremendously attractive to youngsters." He emphasizes that a refrigerator which is being discarded or stored, even for the shortest time, should have its doors removed.

Two other potential suffocation traps for toddlers are zippered bags and pillows. "Again," says Dr. Domm, "parents must keep these objects out of their child's reach or make it clear to him that they are not playtoys."

He also reminds parents that familiarity with artificial respiration techniques has averted many heartbreaks.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Valentine's Day! A day for showing love and a day for giving. I'd be in favor of celebrating this day to the same degree with which we celebrate Thanksgiving and Christmas.

It seems we can't remember to do someone a very nice favor or send flowers unless they are ill. Wouldn't it be fun to surprise someone you love?

Many years ago I came home from school on Valentine's Day and cried because I hadn't received any valentines. To my great surprise, I was told that I had a new baby sister and that she would be my valentine. It wasn't what I expected but she was a very loving child until she died at the age of twelve.

When I was cracking a big pan of black walnuts the other day, to use in cookies, I was reminded of all the work two older relatives out into cracking shagbarks or shellbarks for us. We used all of them in our Christmas baking.

There are several kinds of hickories on our farm. We have shagbark hickory and butternut hickory. If you try to eat the latter kind, you will remember it for a long time. I was amazed that the pecan is also a hickory.

Often, I think it would be interesting to catalog all the various kinds of trees growing in our acres of woodland along the Conestoga River. But, I don't suppose I'll ever get around to doing it. I'll just be happy if I can wonder through our small forests in spring and fall and enjoy their beauty. Another Great pleasure has been sharing my knowledge of plants with younger sisters and in later years with my children.

Decorating meetings slated

The Chester County Extension Service will offer a course in Drapery Making. The classes will be held on Wednesdays, February 25, March 3, 17, 31 and April 7, from 9:30 - 11:30 a.m.

The series of five meetings will discuss fabric selection, measurement, and construction techniques. A variety of top of the window treatments will be included.

A small fee is required for this course. For further information call the Extension Service office, 696-3500. The course will be held in the Extension Service office, Paul B. Dague Bldg. 235 W. Market St., West Chester.

Judy Wade, an Armstrong Consultant, along with local representatives will present these educational programs providing useful consumer information and answer questions related to costs, installation procedures and maintenance.

On Thursday, February 19, 1976 from 1:00 - 3:00 p.m. a program entitled Do-It-Yourself will feature numerous money saving ideas for improving your home interiors.

Carpeting will be the topic for Thursday, February 26, 1976 from 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. Discussion will cover varieties of fibers and construction available, as well as care and buying tips and how to install the carpeting.

Silver Spurs 4-H meets

The monthly meeting of the Silver Spurs 4-H Horse Club was held recently at the home of Mary and Sue Hafer. Jim Glick, president, conducted the business meeting.

Demonstrations were given by Jenn Crystle, Brian McCall and Mike McCall.

It was announced that the Shell Clinic would be held Feb. 27 at the Farm and Home Center beginning at 7:30 p.m. The topic will be "Internal Parasites."

During the business meeting officers for the new year were elected with the following results: Jim Glick - president; Sue Baker - vice president; Roberta Stein - senior treasurer; Sue Hafer - Jr. treasurer; Cherri Gochnauer - secretary and news reporter. Beth Robbins and Amy Katz will be serving on the scrapbook committee.

The next meeting will be held March 5 at the home of Carol Kinzer.

Ag-safety Tip

When operating self-propelled farm equipment, Sperry New Holland safety engineers advise its operation be geared to the terrain. Reduce speed when turning, crossing slopes and on rough, slick or muddy surfaces.

Egg carton reminder available

Free carton inserts which say - "Remember - Pick up an extra dozen eggs for Easter" - are available through a cooperative campaign between American Egg Board and Paas Dye Company.

Dollar-bill-sized inserts are provided by Paas to advertise Easter Egg Coloring Kits. Printed on the back of the 4-color insert is a decorative idea for eggshells.

The deadline for ordering free inserts is March 1. Inserts can be obtained by writing: Inserts, American Egg Board, 205 Touhy Avenue, Park Ridge, IL 60068.

American Egg Board requests a return address, number of inserts needed, and location of stores serviced by the packer.

Olde Homey Hints

Homemade furniture polish included a half-pint of linseed oil, a half-pint of vinegar, and a half-pint of turpentine. It was applied with a flannel rag and then rubbed with a dry flannel.

SOME OF MILK'S VIRTUES

A fascinating concept came to my attention recently. Everyone knows, I suppose, that among other things, one of the reasons milk is important in our diet is the quality of the protein it offers.

Well, protein quality is determined by the presence of many amino acids. And I think most people have heard of amino acids. But the concept that intrigues me — in explaining what they are and what they do — is that "amino acids are to protein what letters are to words."

This concept is presented in a new leaflet, "Milk . . . Ageless Food With Natural Appeal," just published by the National Dairy Council. It is intended for use by educators, nutritionists, physicians, nurses, dentists — any and all professional leaders who, in turn, advise the general public on nutrition.

Amino acids have previously been described as the "building blocks" that make up protein. But I like the "what letters are to words" idea even better. For example, if you didn't have the letters "e" and "a," you would not be able to spell the word "health."

It suggests, after all, that amino acids are — and they surely are — the very stuff without which we would simply not have protein.

And the quality of protein can vary, according to how many amino acids it contains.

We need approximately 22 amino acids to synthesize our own protein. Most of these amino acids we can make. But there happen to be nine amino acids that our bodies make in insufficient quantities or not at all. Thus these amino acids are termed "essential" — meaning we must get them already formed in the food we eat.

They may come from so-called animal foods, such as milk and meat, or eggs, or by very careful combining of plant foods. But in our culture, animal foods are very much relied upon because they readily provide the essential amino acids in the right proportions.

The casein in milk comprises 82 percent of milk's protein. And casein is of such high quality that it is used as a standard for evaluating the quality of protein in other foods.

Quaker farm house opens April 1st

Hostesses versed in the history of the Revolutionary War period in Chester County, Pennsylvania, will begin escorting visitors through the early Quaker farmhouse at Longwood Gardens on April 1, 1976. The house will be open every afternoon, and the fee for the tour will be 50 cents in addition to the regular garden admission fee. Longwood is located northeast of Kennett Square, Pennsylvania at the junction of U.S. Route 1 and Pennsylvania Route 52. It is one of the finest display gardens in the country.

The old farmhouse on Longwood's property was the home of descendants of a Quaker farmer, George Peirce, for almost two hundred years. The family began planting one of the first arboretums in the United States east of the farmhouse in 1798 and took an active interest in botany and horticulture during the nineteenth century. A number of large old trees growing at Longwood today date from Peirce times.

For the bicentennial year, the old Peirce House has been refurbished by Longwood craftsmen and furnished with pieces from the Peirce family. Using the house and old arboretum east of it as a setting, hostesses will explain to visitors the daily life of a simple, Quaker farm family in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and the significance of the contribution which the Peirce family made to the study of botany when they planted their arboretum.

The Peirce House is a brick structure, typical of Chester County farmhouses of the period. Its earliest wing was built in 1730 and added to in 1764. It was standing during the Revolutionary War when a skirmish between redcoats and patroits was fought near the property as General Howe marched from the village of Kennett Square to meet Washington in the Battle of the Brandywine. Later additions were made to the house in 1824, 1825 and again in 1837.

Additions were made to the Peirce arboretum continuously until about 1881, when the last serious botanical scholar in the family, another George Peirce, died. The trees and the house were allowed to deteriorate until 1906, when the property was purchased by a well-known financier and industrialist of the time, Pierre Samuel du Pont. Intensely interested in gardening and horticulture himself, he acquired the property to save the old trees in the arboretum and the natural woodland from destruction.

Longwood has been a public institution since 1946 and is today considered as interesting architecturally and botanically as many old world gardens. Four acres under glass make Longwood a colorful, all-weather garden, as beautiful in the winter months as it is during spring, summer and fall. Plants from all parts of the world thrive in the conservatories and the gardens and grounds are a sanctuary for birds and small wildlife. Longwood is open every day of the year. For further information call 215-388-6741, or write Longwood Gardens, Kennett Square, PA 19348.

Ag history filmed

The Conestoga wagon, a Pennsylvania invention, made it possible to efficiently transport goods and produce overland to market. Later it was adapted to become the "covered wagon" that many families used to migrate to the American West.

You can learn more about Pennsylvania's heritage in "HERITAGE-HORIZONS '76", a Bicentennial program that focuses on the Pennsylvania family - past, present, and future.

"HERITAGE-HORIZONS '76" is available, free of charge, to civic and social groups, schools, youth organizations, historical societies, and church groups. The program includes a color filmstrip and audio tape cassette, richly illustrated commemorative booklets for program participants, and a leader's program manual. The program manual offers suggestions for setting up and presenting a Bicentennial program as well as discussion questions and activities.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS—
so different, it's patented

Your cattle will like Nutrena Controlled Release CLS and you'll like the benefits behind this new development in liquid supplements. The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS liquid supplement—a product of Cargill research. It's great for dairy herds as well as beef cattle on range, pasture, stalks, stubble or in the feedlot.

Good nutrition needed

Many people eat at least one meal a day in a restaurant. And some people do so much traveling that they eat more meals in a restaurant than they do at home.

If you're on a diet to lower cholesterol, how do you cope with a restaurant menu? At home, you know what goes into the food you eat. At a restaurant, even the waiter may not know! Still, it is possible to make selections which would be approved by your doctor, and taste good, too.

A sensible coffee shop breakfast would consist of fruit, cereal, skim milk — and perhaps, dry toast, with a bit of preserves and coffee. Since egg yolk is high in cholesterol, it's wise to avoid eggs in any style. But pancakes, French toast and waffles, with syrup or preserves, but no butter, can be ordered, since the amount of eggs pancakes contain is relatively small.

A light lunch might include clear or vegetable soup; a plain sandwich or salad mixture featuring chicken, turkey, fish or lean meat. Ask to have the bread spread with mayonnaise rather than butter. For dessert, good choices are sherbet, gelatin dessert (without whipped cream) or water ice.

A salad plate with cottage cheese or one of the above protein sources might also be selected. Avoid Chef's Salad if it contains ham, tongue, "regular" cheeses or hard-cooked eggs. Or ask for a Chef's Salad with only turkey or chicken. Bread, toast or crackers are fine, provided you skip butter. Hamburgers, frankfurters and pizza are all high in saturated fat.

At dinner-time (or when lunch is more substantial), look first for entree choices which are roasted or broiled. Eliminate meats naturally high in fat, such as prime-rib roast, porterhouse steak, ham. London Broil may be chosen. Chicken or turkey is an even better choice, as is fish prepared without butter.

Tell the waiter to skip any sauces or gravies. Also, avoid ordering casseroles and stews, since these feature sauces or gravies.

When such foods are prepared by a concerned home cook, special efforts and techniques can be used to lower the amount of saturated fat and cholesterol and replace some saturated fat with a polyunsaturated oil such as Mazola corn oil. However, few restaurants take the time to cook the low-saturated-fat way.

The mixed dishes served in Chinese restaurants are usually a good choice. Chinese chefs traditionally use a vegetable oil and serve meats in modest quantities. Chicken and fish entrees are smart selections.

Avoid dishes made with whole milk cheese and-or eggs — souffles, Quiche Lorraine, rarebits. In an Italian restaurant, you can eat lasagne and other pasta dishes made with mozzarella and ricotta, but skip the extra Parmesan cheese.

If lunch is the only meal eaten away from home, why not "brown bag it." In a vacuum bottle, carry clear soup or skim milk. Bring a sandwich made with leftover (lean) beef, poultry or tuna. Spread the bread with margarine or real mayonnaise plus an appropriate condiment. You might tuck in fruit, or cookies or cake baked with Mazola corn oil or margarine. Then after a quiet lunch at your desk, you can spend your spare time strolling, rather than wait now for the check!

For additional information, send for the booklet "A Diet for Today" available free from Dept. DTGN, Box 307, Coventry CT 06238.

Washbasket news

Before you file those well-intentioned New Year's resolutions in your subconscious, you might add a few more for 1976 that will prevent some common home laundering disasters.

I resolve to . . .

. . . mend torn garments, close zippers, remove chewing gum, crayons and other "treasures" from pockets before washing.

. . . measure the recommended amounts of soap or detergent and additives for maximum performance.

. . . remove things from the dryer as soon as it stops so garments won't wrinkle.

. . . pretreat stains before they go through the wash and are set permanently.

. . . read those labels to find out how clothing should be washed without guesswork.

. . . sort out white from colored things and launder separately.

. . . use chlorine bleach with caution and respect and when in doubt, use a bleach substitute like Borateem Plus, safe for all fabrics and colors.

National speakers featured at Horsemen's seminar

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Some fourteen topics and speakers have been added to the program for the first NATIONAL HORSEMEN'S SEMINAR, April 2-4, 1976, at the Sheraton Inn, Fredericksburg, Virginia, bringing the total number of equine authorities and specialists who will appear at the all-breed event to more than fifty. All lectures, panel discussions and visual presentations are scheduled for the Sheraton Inn, while live demonstrations will be held at the nearby Rapidan River Farm.

The additional seminar topics and speakers, in approximate order of appearance, are as follows:

Friday, April 2, 1976 — "EQUINE RESEARCH TODAY AND TOMORROW," Dr. Thomas R. Bello, D.V.M., Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La.; "PROSTAGLANDIN - A BREAKTHROUGH IN HORMONE CONTROL," Dr. James Lauderdale, Upjohn Company, Kalamazoo, Mich.; "EQUINE PEDIATRICS," Dr. Milton Kingsbury, D.V.M., Woodside Equine Clinic, Ashland, Va.; "PRACTICAL PARISITOLOGY," Dr. Thomas R. Bello, D.V.M., Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La.

Saturday, April 3, 1976 — "HORSE FARM FACILITIES," Larry W. Umstader, ATALCO Corp., Charlottesville, Va., Dr. Harold Hughes, VPI & SU, Blacksburg, Va. and Peter J. Williams, P. J. Williams Co., Broad Run, Va.; "MARE FERTILITY - GOOD AND BAD," Dr. Robert M. Kenney, D.V.M., New Bolton Center, Kennett Square, Pa.; "DAPPLES AND GRAYS, PINTOS AND BAYS" (film telling the story of our Western wild horses), Kay W. Wilkes, Bureau of Land Management, U.S. Department of Interior, Washington, D.C., narrator; "BREED ASSOCIATION PANEL," Don Jones, American Quarter Horse Association, Amarillo, Tex., Chairman, Charles J. Cronan, Jr., American Saddle Horse Breeders Association, Louisville, Ky., A. C. Drowne, American Morgan Horse Association, Hamilton, N.Y., Emmit Guy, Tennessee Walking Horse Breeders and Exhibitors Association, Lewisburg, Tenn., George B. Hatley, Appaloosa Horse Club, Moscow, Idaho, Donald R. Moul, National Trotting and Pacing Association, Hanover, Pa. and Calvin Rainey, The Jockey Club, New York, N.Y.; "DRESSAGE TRAINING DEMONSTRATION," Tom Poulin, American School of Dressage, Fairfield, Me.

Sunday, April 4, 1976 — "HUNTER - JUMPER DEMONSTRATION," Walter J. Lee, Belcort Farm, Keswick, Va.; "EQUINE IMMUNO - DEFICIENCY DISEASES," Dr. James Demartini, D.V.M., Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, Colo.; "WESTERN PLEASURE DEMONSTRATION," Pete Bowling, Flying J Ranch, Leesburg, Va.; "REINING DEMONSTRATION," Nic Zemo, Frederick, Md.; and "THE EQUINE EYE," Dr. Jill Beech, D.V.M., New Bolton Center, Kennett Square, Pa.

According to Seminar General Chairman John G. Hagan, owner of the Rapidan River Farm, Lignum, Virginia, "The Seminar program is now 100 percent completed. We truly expect this unique seminar to attract some 1,000 horse enthusiasts from all parts of the country. Space is limited and I urge all horsemen and horsewomen, adult and youth, to register now." The seminar is being sponsored by the Virginia Horse Council in cooperation with the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University Extension Division and Animal Science Department, Rapidan River Farm and the equine industry.

Registration fees for the three-day event are $100.00 adult for full registration, $30.00 youth (18 years and under) for full registration; special daily rates of $50.00 a day adult, $10.00 a day youth. After March 15, 1976, full registration is $120.00 and daily registration is $60.00 for adult and youth.

Hotel room reservations will be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis at the Sheraton Inn, Fredericksburg, headquarters for the seminar, and at nearby motels. Room assignments will not be made, however, until seminar registrations are received. Special hotel rates for the seminar have been set at $20.00 single occupancy, $30.00 double occupancy and $60.00 for suites at the Sheraton Inn. Identical or lower rates will prevail at nearby motels. Accommodations for campers are available at campgrounds within five miles of the Sheraton Inn, located at Interstate 95 and Va. Rt. 3, just west of Fredericksburg, midway between Washington, D.C. and Richmond, Virginia.

Group transportation is being offered to seminar attendees between Fredericksburg and Washington's National and Dulles Airports and a special rental car plan is also available. Those driving will find free parking, of course.

Seminar registration forms, commercial exhibit space applications, advertising rates for the 200-page Seminar Program - Proceedings and hotel/campgrounds - transportation - car rental reservation requests may be obtained from the seminar management firm, EMI, Inc., 1000 16th Street, N.W., Suite 703, Washington, D.C. 20036, telephone, (202) 659-4605.

Parity rate tumbles

The Parity Ratio declined in 1975 - for the second straight year. It averaged 73 for the year, ranging from 69, where it stood during February, March and April, to 76, where it stood during September and October.

A year earlier, it ranged from a high of 93 - for January and February - to a low of 77 for September and averaged 81. It averaged 88 for all of 1973, 74 in 1972, 69 for 1971.

Foreigners complaining, Butz orders corrections

WASHINGTON - Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has directed tightening of departmental procedures to investigate and respond to foreign grain export complaints.

Following an internal report by the USDA Office of Audit (OA) which said there should have been more coordination and follow-up on foreign complaints between January 1972 and October 1975, the agencies - the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service - agreed to adopt uniform procedures for handling foreign complaints and said the FAS would coordinate these activities.

Secretary Butz said OA's report recommended that AMS send "grain division personnel to overseas discharge ports on a trial basis to collect samples . . . on a random basis to aid in evaluating the overall effectiveness and integrity of export inspection and grading procedures."

In verbal response, AMS officials agreed to institute overseas checks on a "trial basis."

Farm leader disappointed with dairy bill veto

A farm leader said last week that President Ford's veto of the dairy support bill (S.J. Res. 121) is "a slap in the face" for Pennsylvania farmers and dairymen across the country. John R. Pitzer, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA), made these remarks in announcing that his organization was seeking to override the President's veto.

"The administration had indicated earlier that the price support would be raised, and quarterly adjustments in milk prices would be instituted," according to Pitzer. PFA had sought a price support of 85 percent parity, which is presently 80 percent. It had also sought the quarterly adjustments in order to react to the changing milk price, and milk market.

Pitzer said that most dairymen, represented by his organization, "were hurting from increasing costs, and this action by President Ford was a great disappointment."

Ford vetoed the bill at the urging of U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. Many farm organizations, including PFA, had urged the President to sign the bill into law.

In his veto message, Ford ordered Secretary Butz to have quarterly reviews of dairy prices, but Pitzer doesn't believe this is enough.

"We need it spelled out in the law books," Pitzer said. "We have been stung on previous promises by the Ford Administration."

The farm leader was referring to Ford's promise to farmers of "free access to foreign markets" and the eventual embargoes imposed on foreign grain sales last fall and this winter. "These embargoes cost farmers millions of dollars," Pitzer said. He stated that the veto of the price support bill would do the same to dairymen.

Dairy farmers cannot continue to produce milk for the consumer without a fair return for his products," Pitzer said. "It's about time President Ford recognizes the fact that farmers, especially dairymen, are in desperate need. This bill, raising the parity price and calling for quarterly reviews of the prices, would be fair to both the farmer and the consumer."

Young sheep exhibitors tell of their Farm Show experiences

Nancy and Kathy Haentze, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haentze, Evergreen Lane Farm, Skippack, exhibited their sheep for the first time last month at the 60th Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Both girls are members of the Montgomery County 4-H Sheep Club. Nancy has belonged six years and Kathy for five years.

Never having been in a show this large was an experience. Each girl was aware she was competiting against the top sheep in the state. They were completely unprepared for the results which followed.

Sunday afternoon found Nancy and Kathy showing sheep in the Open Class Hampshire Yearling Ewe. This was an extremely large class with many men who raise sheep professionally exhibiting also. In this class neither girl did well. They said, "It really was an experience showing their animals in such a large place with so many other exhibitors at the same time."

Kathy Haentze

Nancy and Kathy are quick to tell you how friendly many of these older experienced showmen are. They gave the girls many valuable tips as they worked on their sheep preparing them for show.

One important thing they learned and will be telling other members of the Green Pasture Sheep Club, is that everyone will have to trim their fleeces shorter for show. When the animal is finished the wool depth should be only one-eighth inch all over. Too much wool on an animal does not allow a judge to see the animal's best features. Wooly sheep are out for show!

Monday morning found Nancy back in the show ring with the other breed of sheep that the Haentzes raise. Nancy was showing one of the Corriedale rams they have raised. In honor of the Bicentennial, Nancy named her ram "Benjamin Franklin," who placed second in the Corriedale yearling ram class.

On Wednesday the girls entered a fleece from a Corriedale Ewe that was judged Reserve Grand Champion. Both girls help with the shearing of the sheep in the spring. The Corriedale breed of sheep is extremely wooly and a fleece from this breed is usually one of good size. All fleeces that were judged at the show were on display, under plastic, out in the sheep barn.

Thursday was 4-H Day at the Farm Show and both Kathy and Nancy were ready to exhibit. Due to bad weather conditions, a group of fellow 4-H'ers from back home were late in arriving, but they gathered in the Small Arena in time to see Kathy place 4th in the junior championship class with her Hampshire yearling ewe, "Tiffany."

Later that afternoon Nancy had planned to participate in the 4-H Junior blocking contest, but at this point was exhibiting in the ring with a temperature of 102 degrees, so her parents decided that she should drop out. A blocking contest consists of taking an animal, right out of the pen, and working on it for one hour to see how well you can shape the animal up in that amount of time.

Nancy and Kathy did well for their first time in participating. To have won the honors they did was quite an accomplishment. Nancy is vice president of her 4-H Club and Kathy is in her second year as secretary.

Commodity futures trade gained

WASHINGTON - Trading in commodity futures exchanges in the United States in 1975 increased by more than 16 percent in volume and almost 5 percent in dollar value to nearly $600 billion.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission said today that the number of commodity futures contracts traded on the exchanges rose to 32,200,067, a gain of 16.11 percent over the 1974 volume of 27,733,328.

The commodities exchanged in those 32 million contracts were worth $598,026,700,000, an increase of $26,458,600,000 over the 1974 trade of $571,568,100,000.

"The continuing growth in the futures markets of this country is a healthy sign," commented CFTC Chairman William T. Bagley. "It means to me that institutional hedges and speculators, as well as the general public, are gaining confidence in the fairness and honesty of the market. It is likely, in my view, that this confidence is at least partly a result of the 'presence' established by the Commission. I sincerely hope this is true - and this trust will grow in future years."

Estimated value of the soybean contracts in 1975 was $120,104,700,000, a gain of 14.03 percent over the 1974 trade of $105,319,900,000. Volume of trade in soybeans was up 38.99 percent to 4,570,936 contracts from 3,288,645 in 1974.

Corn, one of the grain futures contracts which traditionally is among the heaviest traded of all futures, was number one in trade in 1975. Corn contracts traded totaled 5,637,222, a gain of 3.63 percent over the 1974 trade of 5,439,571 contracts. The dollar value of the contracts in 1975 dropped to $73,185,300,000, a decline of 4.91 from $76,782,800,000 a year earlier.

Wheat, another of the most popular futures contracts, saw trade decline to 3,434,892 contracts from 3,607,239 in 1974, a decrease of 5.01 percent. The dollar value of the wheat contracts in 1975 was estimated at $60,724,300,000, down 23.65 percent from $75,090,700,000 in 1974.

Trading in and the dollar value of frozen pork belly futures contracts showed substantial gains last year. The number of contracts traded almost doubled to 1,443,464 from the 735,248 traded in 1974. The estimated value of the traded contracts climbed to $38,611,300,000, up 164.35 percent from $14,606,100,000 a year earlier.

Soybean oil contracts trade decreased by 8.76 percent. The number of contracts traded was 1,489,720 as compared with 1,620,316 a year earlier. The dollar value of the contracts traded, however, increased by 70.47 percent to $23,668,600,000 in 1975 from $13,884,000,000 in 1974.

Sugar futures trade increased by 2.65 percent to 801,996 contracts from 781,278 in 1974. The estimated dollar value declined, however, by 35.36 percent to $18,254,200,000 from $24,709,600,000 in 1974.

The number of combined cattle futures traded aggregated 2,487,746 as compared with 2,549,945 in 1974, a decline of 2.5 percent. The dollar value of these contracts was estimated at $40,892,900,000 in 1975, down from $45,489,900,000 a year earlier, a drop of 11.24 percent.

Lewis seeks neutrality

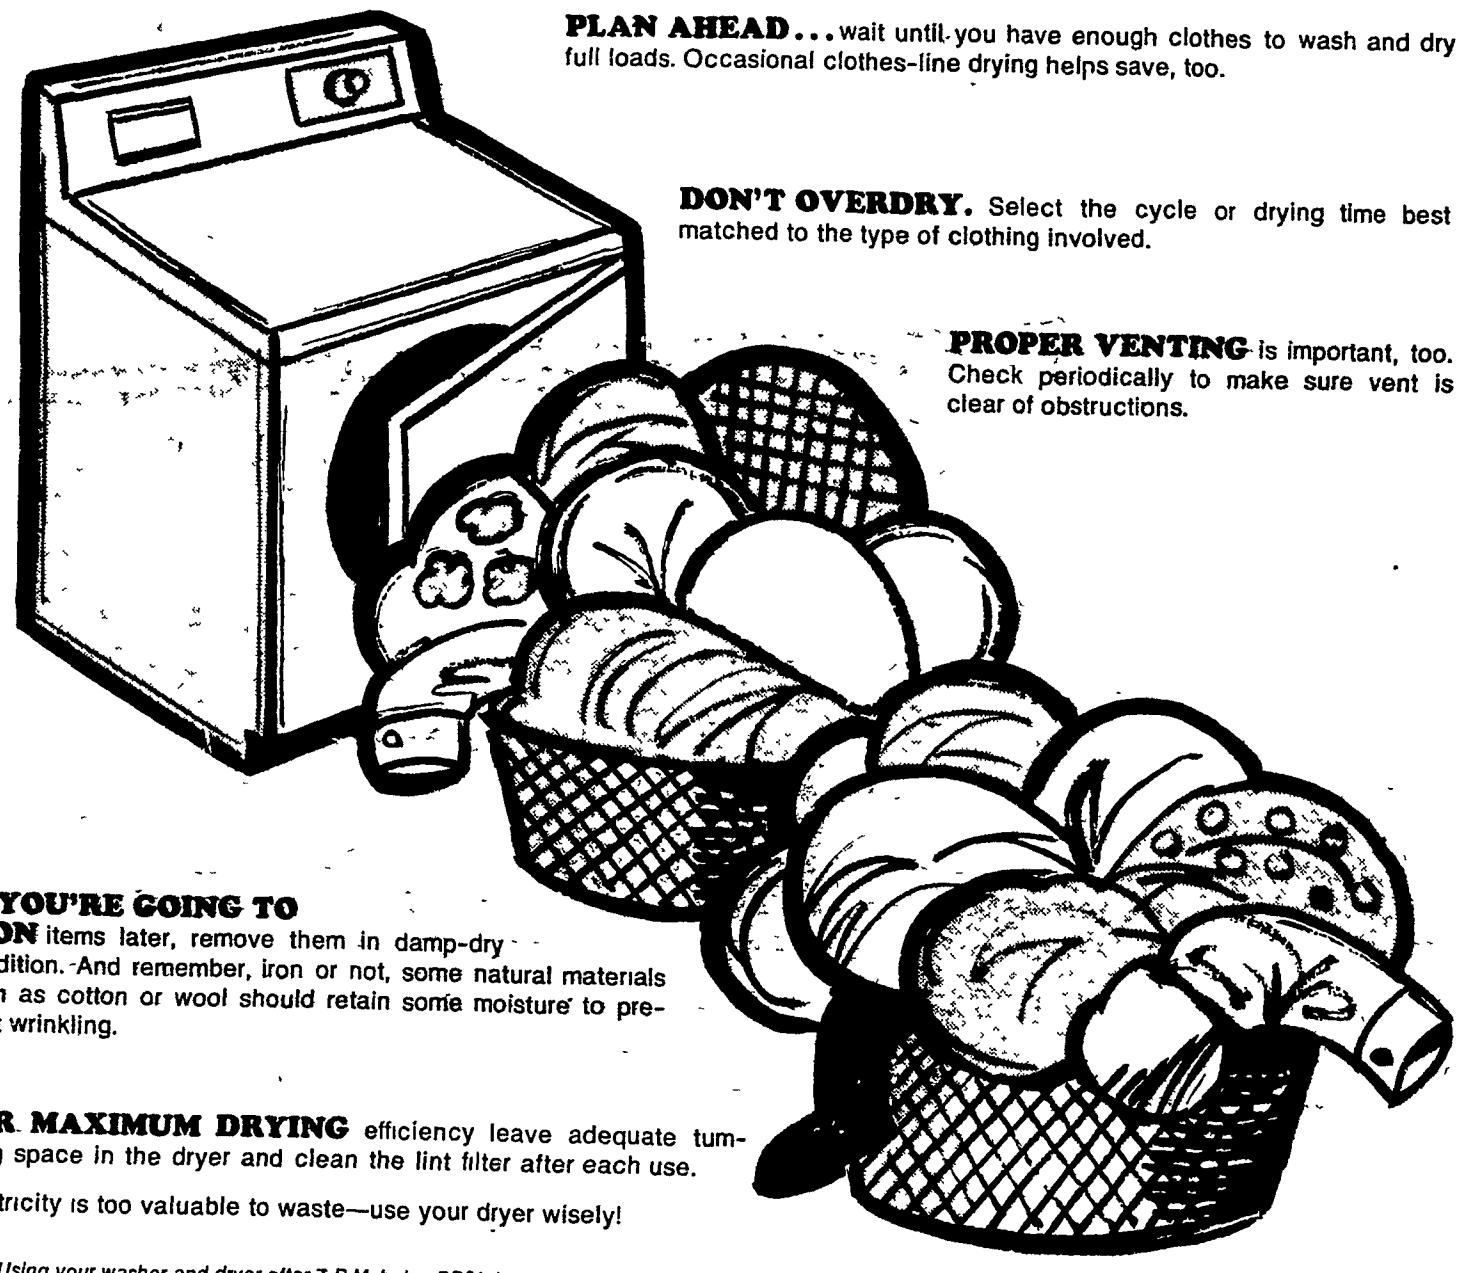
Al Lewis, Republican candidate for United States Congress from Lebanon, Lancaster and Chester counties, today released a copy of a letter he sent to Lebanon County Republican Chairman George Jackson asking that the Lebanon County Republican Executive Committee remain netural in the primary election campaign for Congress.

Lewis said:

"In view of the fact that three counties are included in our district, and considering further, the vote for an open primary of the Lancaster County Republican Committee, I would urge in the strongest possible terms that we make no endorsement for the office which I seek. As a matter of fact, I would consider it a breach of a commitment which I made to the Lancaster County Advisory Committee if I received such an endorsement."

Lewis also tendered his resignation from the County Republican Executive Committee and also his position as a precinct Committeeman. Lewis said that this action was "in keeping with our tradition that no candidate in the primary should serve as a member of our Executive Committee.

How to save ELECTRICITY
If you own a clothes dryer...



PLAN AHEAD... wait until you have enough clothes to wash and dry full loads. Occasional clothes-line drying helps save, too.

DON'T OVERDRY. Select the cycle or drying time best matched to the type of clothing involved.

PROPER VENTING is important, too. Check periodically to make sure vent is clear of obstructions.

IF YOU'RE GOING TO IRON items later, remove them in damp-dry condition. And remember, iron or not, some natural materials such as cotton or wool should retain some moisture to prevent wrinkling.

FOR MAXIMUM DRYING efficiency leave adequate tumbling space in the dryer and clean the lint filter after each use.

Electricity is too valuable to waste—use your dryer wisely!

Angus scholarships available

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. - College scholarships totalling $2,600 will be awarded this summer to three girls and three boys who have an active interest in Angus cattle. The awards are made each year by the American Angus Auxiliary to outstanding 4-H or FFA members on a competitive basis, reports Mrs. Jeannette Thompson, Bloomfield, Indiana, president of the national Angus women's organization.

The individual scholarships amount to $650 for each first place girl and boy, $400 for second place, and $250 for third. The highest placing girl will reign as Miss American Angus and will appear at numerous national Angus events and shows with the first place boy winner as her escort.

Any 4-H or FFA member, who is a graduating high school senior with an interest in Angus cattle, is eligible to apply. Each state or regional Angus Auxiliary in the United States is entitled to present one girl applicant and one boy applicant for consideration. The scholarships are not limited to any course of higher education, but each applicant must submit, on the official application form, records of showing and judging Angus cattle, 4-H, FFA and civic activities and a short biography. Winners will be announced at the All-American Angus Futurity in Louisville, Kentucky, on August 9. Application may be made through state or regional Angus Auxiliaries. Contact the National Angus Scholarship Chairman, Mrs. Sam Wagner, Harlan, Kansas 67641 for the names and addresses of state chairmen.

The American Angus Auxiliary has provided a scholarship program for 18 years. The first award was made to one girl in the amount of $300. Because of the dedication of many Auxiliary members and the generosity of numerous Angus breeders throughout the country, the program has increased to nearly tenfold. Biffle Angus Ranch, Allen, Oklahoma, has donated this year's scholarship heifer. She will be auctioned at the Futurity Show in Louisville with the proceeds going into the Auxiliary's scholarship fund to be used for future needs.

Tomato growers conference set

A greenhouse tomato growers' meeting for Peninsula growers has been scheduled for February 26 at 7:00 p.m. at the University of Delaware Substation in Georgetown, Delaware. According to extension horticulture specialist Dr. Mike Orzolek, Peninsula growers are invited to hear extension and research personnel talk about the greenhouse tomato industry.

Featured on the program are Dr. George Taylor, of Rutgers University, and Dr. Frank Schales of the University of Maryland. Taylor will discuss New Jersey's greenhouse tomato industry. Afterward, a question and answer period will be held for informal discussion.

For more information, call Mike Orzokek at the Substation, or check with your county agent in Newark, Dover, or Georgetown.

Two busy mothers who were driving their children to school collided one morning. The women got out and inspected the damage, but decided they didn't really have time to have an accident right then. They agreed, therefore, to meet later and work things out.

That afternoon each woman drove back to the scene of the accident and carefully maneuvered her automobile into the exact position of the accident that morning. Then they called the police.

hogs that look healthy can lose more money than one like this:

The respiratory complex is a major cause of "hidden" disease losses Hogs may appear healthy, but many can be fighting off disease and losing efficiency

Pneumonia is a key factor in the respiratory disease complex But it's often brought on by atrophic rhinitis Atrophic rhinitis is an infection in the hog's snout By damaging the air passageway — which normally filters out dust and bacteria — atrophic rhinitis opens the door for pneumonia

Tylan Plus Sulfa is the only feed additive cleared for both atrophic rhinitis and pneumonia It has proved its ability to treat pneumonia, and to maintain weight gains and feed efficiency in the presence of atrophic rhinitis That's why we recommend it

	PRE–STARTER	STARTER	GROWER	FINISHER
ANALYSIS (protein, fat, fiber)	20-4-2	18-4-3	16-3-4	14-3.5-4
FEEDING DIRECTIONS:	Feed up to 30 lbs.	25-50 lbs. (may be fed up to 75 lbs.)	51-125 lbs.	125 to market

MANAGEMENT SUGGESTIONS:

At Birth:
- Inject iron 150 mgs. per pig
- Clip teeth
- Disenfect navels
- Cut tails if desired

To encourage early feed intake —
1. Provide water in creep area.
2. Use box-lid type feeders.
3. Feed pellets
4. Replace feed daily

- Castrate before 4 weeks of age.
- Continue pre-starter one week after weaning.
- Worm pigs after weaning and throughout growing period as necessary.

PIG FEEDING PROGRAM

Feeding pigs from a birth weight of 3 lbs. to a market weight of 200 lbs. in 150 days on 600 lbs. of feed requires 4 levels of protein for most efficient conversion of feed from pig to pork. Four levels of protein are provided in Gehman's pig Pre-starter at 20 percent; Gehman's Pig starter at 18 percent; Gehman's Pig Grower at 16 percent; and Gehman's hog finisher at 14 percent.

GEHMAN'S PIG PRE-STARTER

Sow's milk gets pigs off to a good start but feed is needed to supplement milk after pigs are 3-4 weeks old and to replace milk entirely at weaning. Gehman's Pig Pre-Starter is medicated to reduce digestive upsets and scours and is recommended from birth to 6 weeks of age and for one week after weaning. A pig will consume about 10 lbs. of feed to 6 weeks of age.

GEHMAN'S PIG STARTER

After weaning and pigs are eating more feed, lower protein will provide the "building blocks" of amino acids for young pigs to develop s-t-r-e-t-c-h in body length to make a No. 1 carcass at market. Gehman's Pig Starter pellets are medicated with Mecadox or Aureo-S-P 250 to reduce scours and maintain appetite. Feed Gehman's Pig Starter Pellets from 6 to 10 weeks or about 30 lbs. per pig — or until pigs reach 50 lbs. in weight.

GEHMAN'S PIG GROWER

After pigs are 10-12 weeks old, growth is slower and 16 percent protein is adequate. Medication is provided to increase growth, improve feed efficiency and to control worm in Gehman's Pig Grower pellets, to be fed from 10 to 16 weeks of age or until 100 lbs. of Grower is consumed or until pigs reach 125 lbs. in weight.

GEHMAN'S HOG FINISHER

After pigs reach 125 lbs. in weight at about 16 weeks of age, lower protein level may be fed for finishing 14 percent or even lower if hogs are fed to heavy market weights. This is the time when feed intake is high and rapid weight gains are made. Every day to market requires more feed. Hogs that go to market at earliest age consume less feed and have best feed conversion.

Gehman's 40% Hog Concentrate - will balance farm grains for mixing, growing and finishing rations.

Pelleting reduces feed wastage, increases feed intake and improves feed utilization. All Gehman complete swine feeds are available as pellets.

Shreiner farm is tourist's delight

By MELISSA PIPER

LANCASTER - When Hans Adam Shreiner first arrived in America in 1729 he eagerly searched the eastern region for a land that would support a good farm. News of the fertile Lancaster County area sent the German immigrant further inland to explore and upon seeing acreage in what is now Manheim Township, Shreiner claimed some 500 acres and returned to his native land. Three years later in 1733, Shreiner arrived again with his family, their possessions carefully packed in a huge wooden trunk, and began his farming operation in the "new land."

Eight generations have passed since Hans Shreiner first settled in Lancaster County but the Shreiner farm still stands out as a landmark in the area. The farm is now owned by Mrs. J. Newton Shreiner, wife of the eighth generation son.

Although Route 272 has now run parallel to the front lawn of the house and took some eight acres for right of way, the buildings on the Shreiner farm stand quietly reminiscent of the early 1800's.

A large Swiss bank barn is quite noticeable from the road and has attracted great volume of tourist interest over the years. The stone house built in 1806 has had little outside renovations - keeping the flare of early Pennsylvania architecture alive. A small summer house also stand quietly behind the other buildings - shaded in the summer by large trees.

Built in 1808, the Shreiner home still graces the 100 acre farm in Lancaster County.

The house now on the property was the third dwelling built by the Shreiner ancestors. Two previous houses had been constructed closer to the springs for both water and food cooling.

Across the driveway from the house, the huge bank barn, once the scene of activity now stands quiet and serene.

"The barn was built big to house the many horses used for farming," Mrs. Shreiner explained. "It was also used for machinery protection and for grain storage."

The barn has come to the attention of many since its construction is still well defined. Roman numeral markings used to join the logs during building are still seen along with wooden pegs coupling the beams. Stonework accents the building and has sparked much attention from tourists.

Many area folktales have been related about the Shreiner barn the most famous of which was its prominence of hiding slaves. During the Civil War, it was one of many barns in the county where runaway slaves were hidden by day. The Shreiner history also relates that a barn close to the family acreage (near Neffsville) was used extensively for slave travel. In fact, the built up mound of dirt used to reach the upper floors had been hollowed out in a clever effort to hid the runaways.

Digging a well also became a noted incident for the Shreiners, for one morning the task was begun by hand. At lunchtime the workers retired to the house for eating only to return and fine that the well, already hand dug, had collapsed. All the worker's tools were lost and construction was delayed until another site was found.

General farming was carried out on the Shreiner farmstead which emcompassed some 500 acres. Throughout the years however, the land was sold until today the tract has only 100 acres.

While farm machinery was not available during the early years of toil, the Shreiners did have one piece of equipment which aided their work - namely a conestoga wagon. Forged in Pennsylvania, Michael Shreiner brought his conestoga wagon home in 1750. It was used to haul grains from the fields and to transport crops to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. It often returned filled to the brim with western coal or goods needed from the port cities. The wagon was utilized for many years with pictures being taken of it, still in operation, in the early 1900's.

Carefully observing the traditional methods of German farming, the Shreiners practiced crop rotation with attention to all details.

"Back then it was thought that rotation was quite necessary for good production," Mrs. Shreiner stated, "grasses and crops were mixed, with some rotations taking seven years."

The farm was still used to raise steers, grains and tobacco up until ten years ago. It is now rented by Melvin and Nelson Rohrer.

Although a major highway now stands between the Shreiner farm and the peaceful Conestoga Creek, the early settled acreage still remains as a portion of early americana.

Mrs. J. Newton Shreiner looks over the history of her husband's ancestors. The Shreiners came to America in 1733 and settled near Manheim Township.

Credibility to be strengthened

Under Secretary of Agriculture John A. Knebel told wheat farmers in Spokane this week the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is moving vigorously to tighten up the official grain inspection and weighing system to protect their interests as leading producers and shippers of grain.

Speaking at the Pacific Northwest Farm Forum, the Under Secretary declared, "Let's face it: We can't stand for our reliability as the supplier of top quality grain around the world to be jeopardized because when that happens you and the other farmers of this nation are going to be the losers."

"Admittedly, the USDA has a delicate balance to maintain in order to keep exports moving on the one hand and preserve our reputation as a reliable and quality supplier on the other. We must carry out the regulatory function given to us by Congress and serve the farm constituency as well," Mr. Knebel explained.

"I don't see these two goals as inconsistent. In our actions of cracking down on those who damage the credibility of the inspection and weighing system, I think we are also telling our grain customers we are going to see to it they get the best quality grain in the world, which is what you grow."

The Under Secretary told the farm forum they can expect to see USDA taking the following administrative steps to eliminate "some of the pervasive practices which seem to have crept into grading and weighing of grain:

"1. We are going to increase unannounced ship, boardings to check the quality of grain beyond the loading spout.

"2. In cooperation with local United States Attorneys we are going to use available evidence to suspend the licenses of federally-licensed inspectors who are indicted by local grand juries.

"3. We are going to take administrative action to 'pull the tickets' of licensed grain inspection and weighing agencies whenever we have evidence that they or a number of their employees are involved in violations of the federal law.

"4. We are going to establish a workable system to follow-up on complaints from overseas customers about the quality of grain shipped in export so that they will be thoroughly checked out. This must be done to assure our overseas customers that the Federal government is not closing its eyes to shady practices in grain inspection and weighing."

More cattle exports seen

HARRISBURG - The record number of dairy cattle air shipped from Harrisburg International Airport last year may be doubled in 1976, Secretary of Agriculture Raymond J. Kerstetter said this week.

A total of 5,278 cattle left Harrisburg in 59 air shipments last year, Kerstetter said, adding that increasing buyer interest in eastern Europe and the Middle East may result in twice that number being exported this year.

Destinations for last year's air shipments were France, Hungary, Iran, Italy, Jordan, Czechoslovakia, Kuwait, Russia, Spain and Turkey. Most of the cattle were Holstein bred heifers supplied by breeders in Pennsylvania and other states in the East and Midwest.

Besides the cattle, 32 thoroughbred horses and 297 purebred swine left the Harrisburg airport via jet for foreign markets.

During 1975, a total of 2,003 Pennsylvania bred cattle were exported by air or water to foreign countries, Kerstetter reported. This compares with 1,423 the year before.

Other livestock and poultry exports from Pennsylvania breeders included 772,106 baby chicks, 2,420 horses, 47 sheep, and 24 swine. Exports of hatching eggs totaled 118,502 dozen, more than three times the previous year. Also exported were 161,519 ampules of semen, the latter being almost double the previous year.

Heart seminar scheduled

Coronary heart disease kills more Americans every year than any other known disease. It is the principle cause of death in Pennsylvania for the past 50 years.

Diet has been identified as part of the problem. In an effort to help the individuals understand the relationship of diet to heart disease, the nutritionists from the Department of Health, the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Office, the Heart Association, and Extension personnel will be conducting a workshop on February 18, 1976 at the Good Samaritan Hospital in St. Mary's Hall from 1:00 to 3:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Flower show scheduled

The New Jersey Flower Show opening on Feb. 28 in the Armory at Morristown, will feature a number of outstanding exhibits as well as many commercial displays that feature flowering plants, trees, and shrubs. It is quite a trick to get these all at the peak of perfection for a show that comes along quite ahead of the normal flowering time for many of the shrubs and trees that will be on display. The commercial horticulturists work long and hard to give us all a preview of spring at these great shows.

Many people believe that admitting a fault means they no longer have to córrect it.

ACME buys champion steer

Darlene Huyard, 138 Newport Road, Leola, Pa., raised the shorthorn steer that was judged the medium weight group reserve champion last week at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. Darlene's 1150-pound steer was one of several 4H baby beef steers bought by Acme Markets, Inc., the Philadelphia-based food chain. Darlene is shown during the annual auction of 4H steers that marks the end of the Farm Show.

Coronary seminar scheduled

The American Heart Association, Lancaster Chapter is holding a professional education seminar entitled "Updating Coronary Artery Disease" which will be held on March 12, 1976 at the Continental Inn, 2285 Lincoln Highway East and beginning with registration at 8:30 a.m.

Catagory I credit will be given for 5 hours to those attending the seminar. The cost for this is $6.00 per person which includes lunch.

For more information, write or call the American Heart Association, Lancaster, Pennsylvania Chapter office at 246 W. Orange Street, 393-0725.

Farm Catalog Published

HENDERSON, NB. - The "Pricebuster", a 20-page catalog which offers pre-engineered farm buildings at factory prices is now available from hy-mark industries, inc. here.

The catalog reflects hy-mark's new marketing objective - to sell metal buildings of the best possible quality at the lowest possible price, said Dick Aksamit, Sales Manager.

"Our new price schedule enables us to sell buildings priced as low as $1.44 per square foot - the lowest price in the industry," Mr. Aksamit said.

Hy-mark's factory-direct sales program will enable the farmer to get the building he needs now - with a minimum of cost and effort. The money he saves on building costs can be applied to other farm needs.

The Pricebuster Catalog is available without charge direct from hy-mark.

EIGHT NEW CORN HYBRIDS

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — Just in time for '76 planting, Funk Seeds International has announced the release of eight new corn hybrids.

The new Funk's G-Hybrids include: G-4850, G-4880W, G-4776, G-4869S, G-5191, G-4272, G-4520, and G-4848.

Two of the new hybrids are adapted to the relatively short growing seasons of the northern U.S. G-5191 fits farming programs from eastern Montana all the way east through southern New England. It has established an excellent yield record in Funk's trials, and is noted for producing large ears with deep kernels along with strong stalks and roots. G-4272 contains good to excellent tolerance to yellow leaf blight and eyespot and has shown good yield potential and standability. It, too, is designed for the northern Corn Belt, from South Dakota east through the Great Lakes states into southern New England.

All the new Funk's G-Hybrids are now available through the Funk sales organization. Seed supplies of some of the new hybrids are limited, according to Funk spokemen, so growers wishing to try the new hybrids this year should contact their Funk's G dealer as soon as possible.

Fiberglass tank featured

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. - A new "Slimline" fiberglass tank for agriculture has been introduced by Raven Industries of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Designed for side-mounting, this new 200 gallon capacity tank fits on tractors with minimal clearance between cab and wheel.

Raven's new "Slimline" comes with a ten-inch fillwell and a choice of outlets. There are wide gallonage strip indicators on both sides of the tank for easy level checking. Colors can be matched to equipment, with yellow being standard.

For more information about Raven's new 30-inch diameter "Slimline" ag tank, contact your nearest Raven dealer. Or write: Raven Industries Inc., Plastics Division, Box 1007, Sioux Falls, So. Dak. 57101.

AGRICULTURE 1975 summary

Dairy products increased

Butter production up for the second straight year, the highest since 1972 ... American cheese output the lowest since 1972 ... Ice cream production record high for the third straight year.

U.S. butter output, at 83 million pounds during December, was down seven percent from a year earlier, marking the 8th straight month output has been below that of a corresponding month a year earlier. But, production for all of 1975, at 975.6 million pounds, was up one percent from a year earlier, marking the second straight year it has increased. Sharply higher (by 12 percent to 27 percent) output in the first four months did the trick.

American cheese production, at 135.6 million pounds during December, was up nine percent from a year earlier. But, output for Jan. - Dec., at 1.66 billion pounds, was down 10 percent from a year earlier, fractionally below that of 1973.

Ice cream production, at 57.9 million pounds during December, up 10 percent from a year earlier. This was the 18th straight month (and 20th of the last 21) that ice cream output has exceeded that of a corresponding month a year earlier. Production for all of 1975 totaled 843.8 million pounds, up eight percent from 1974's previous high, nine percent above that of 2 years ago.

Production of both creamed cottage cheese and lowfat cottage cheese both up last year. Cottage cheese, at 881 million pounds, up three percent from 1974; lowfat cottage cheese output, at 124.3 million pounds, up two percent from a year earlier.

Prune peach trees late

Do not prune peach trees until late April or early May if they have been subjected to temperatures approaching minus 15 degrees f., warns Joseph N. Way, Montgomery County agricultural agent.

He says peach trees simply cannot survive the dual injury of extremely cold weather and heavy pruning in the early spring. After a winter of severe cold snaps, it's a good idea to prune the peach trees light. Wait until growth starts. This will permit visual determination of tree damage and allow for removing only the dead. This is especially true if the tree's trunk has also suffered damage.

Trees planted on low-lying sites usually are harder hit by winter cold and spring frosts.

If this winter has several severe cold periods, Way urges peach orchard owners and those having home orchards to follow these general rules: prune later and less drastically, and fertilize with about half the usual amounts. Cultivate around the trees later in the spring. Fertilizing half the usual amount is recommended so that excessive new growth is not encouraged.

Single parents meet

Parents Without Partners will meet at 7:45 p.m. Friday, February 20 at the social hall of the Grace Lutheran Church, James and N. Queen Sts., Lancaster.

Trooper Edward J. Rowlands of the Pa. State Police, Lancaster Barracks, will show a film, "Invitation to Burglary" followed by a discussion on the psychological and physical elements of the burglar.

All single parents, because of death, divorce, separation or unmarried status who have at least one living unmarried child under 21 years of age are invited to attend. More information on the purposes and activities of the organization may be obtained by calling Elsie E. Schroeder, 741 Emerald Drive or Frank Dettinger, 1507 Queen Lane.

Food diplomacy discussed by grain company official

FARGO, N.D. — International grain barter arrangements or grain agreements with fixed pricing provisions are the two major road hazards ahead as the United States goes the route of food diplomacy, Clarence D. Palmby, vice president, Continental Grain Company, said here recently.

Speaking to the Sixteenth Annual Fargo Farm Forum, Palmby questioned the wisdom of our supplying grain to specific destinations under a barter plan whereby this country would acquire certain raw materials.

"If," he said, "our trading system should move in the direction of government to government transactions, we will be planting the seeds for price fixing not only for import of items from a trading partner but eventually for grain shipped to this same partner."

Discussing the "folly" of price fixing agreements, Palmby noted they are prime examples of how grain importing nations could respond to ideas or programs which our government might promote.

He pointed to the vulnerability of this country to such agreements, explaining that the United States is now supplying over one-half the world exports of grain and soybeans. "Such a dominant position makes us extremely susceptible to policies being pushed by our trading partners."

Palmby stressed the importance of this country's grain supply in world affairs.

"I look on our grain not as a weapon but as an asset . . . owned by some, traded by many and of national and international consequence to us all."

Turfgrass school slated

The First Northeastern Pennsylvania Turfgrass School has been scheduled on February 24 at the Master Host Inn, Route 115 and 309, Wilkes-Barre, with registration beginning at 8:30 a.m. The program will start at 9:00 a.m. and conclude at 4:00 p.m. according to County Agent, Terry Bortz. Details regarding preregistration may be obtained at the County Agricultural Extension Office.

The School should be of interest to Golf Course, Cemetary, Park, School and College Turf Superintendents and Maintenance personnel, Nurserymen, Garden Supply dealers, and others who deal with lawns and turfgrass establishment and maintenance.

Dr. John C. Harper II, Penn State Agronomist and widely recognized turf expert will discuss the topics of "Fertilizer Facts" and "Turfgrass Varieties and Mixtures for 1976." Lackawanna agent Tom Jurchak will present the topic "How A Plant Grows."

The Subject of "Turfgrass Diseases and Control Measure" will be presented by Mr. William M. Lansdowne, Golf Course Superintendent at the Country Club of Scranton. Luzerne County agent E. V. Chadwick will discuss "Turfgrass Insect Control."

The planning committee selected the topics of "Personnel Relationships" and "Development of a Turfgrass Budget" for presentation by Professor Frederick A. Hughes, Farm Management specialist from the Penn State Extension Service.

Questions concerning the most current subject of Pesticide Certification will be answered by Mr. James Garrahan, Northeastern regional Pesticide Coordinator for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

County Agent, Terry Bortz, points out that each registrant will receive a packet of educational materials at the time of registration. This packet and a noon luncheon will be included in the registration fee.

Every successful man I have heard of has done the best he could with conditions as he found them, and not waited until next year for better.

Pollution regulations to affect

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Environmental Protection Agency recently announced the results of a USDA report on the number of livestock feeding operations potentially covered by NPDES regulations recently proposed by EPA. Of the over 700,000 animal feeding operations in major producing States, the two agencies reported that as many as 95,000 may be affected by the proposed regulations. USDA and EPA are jointly evaluating the new information and determining what impact it should have on the final regulations required by the court order to be promulgated on or before March 10, 1976.

Under the proposed regulations, which are currently under review before being finalized, the affected operations would be required to apply for a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System permit to control discharges of wastes into the Nation's waters. EPA proposed new regulations as a result of a court decision invalidating EPA's previous exclusion of small feedlots from permit requirements. The Court ordered EPA to promulgate regulations extending its permit program to these operations. Although EPA is appealing the decision, it is bound by the court order to proceed with promulgating the regulations.

Today's report is based upon expert opinion of USDA and State research and extension personnel located in major livestock producing states. The information is not based on a survey of feeding operations, but is the judgement of experts in the major producing states. This information was not available to EPA or USDA at the time the regulations were proposed.

According to the report approximately 93,000 or 97 percent of the 95,000 operations that might be affected have capacities of less than 300 beef animals, 210 dairy animals or 750 swine. Some 67,000 or 70 percent of operations affected are small units with capacities of less than 100 beef animals, 70 dairy cows and 250 pigs and hogs.

These operations are potentially affected by criteria in the proposed regulations that would require feedlots to apply for permits if they are larger than specified capacities and discharge to navigable water during rainfall frequencies of less than once in twenty-five years, are traversed by navigable water or discharge measurable wastes through a man-made conveyance.

The number of operations affected is far in excess of the number expected at the time the regulations were proposed. Additional operations could be affected under the "case by case" provision included in the proposed regulations.

The report on this subject is available from the USDA Office of Communications and EPA.

Tractor safety taught

The Montgomery County Extension Service will offer a tractor safety certification course for area youth. Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, all 14 and 15 year olds who plan to be employed off the home farm and will be operating a tractor of over 20 PTO horse power, must have evidence of satisfactory completion of such a course before they can be employed.

The 10-hour course will begin on March 1st from 7-9 p.m. and continue for five consecutive Monday nights, up to and including March 29th. Classes will be held at the Western Montgomery Vo-Tech School in Limerick. The driving exam will be scheduled for Saturday, April 3rd. Some previous experience is desirable.

Although the course is designed for youth, anyone interested in learning about basic tractor safety is welcomed to attend. To reserve a spot in the class, call the 4-H office of the Cooperative Extension Service, 277-0574.

Belarus
the economy of low-cost 4-wheel drive

you'll see economy wherever you look on a Belarus

Looking won't cost you a dime. What you'll see on your first Belarus tractor is sizable savings, both in initial cost and for over the long haul. And Belarus' unique economy comes "wrapped" in workpower and dependability famous the world over.

Every Belarus tractor is a hard-lugging, long-life heavyweight diesel. Consider the rugged 70-hp Model 500; the 70-hp 520 with its unique 4-wheel drive; the 57-hp 400 and the 420 with 4-wheel drive; or the powerful utility 250. They're sold through a modern dealer network. Backed by fully stocked regional parts and service centers. All horsepowers are manufacturer's engine ratings.

At your Belarus dealer, be sure to ask about the 4-wheel drive (exclusive) that automatically engages on-the-go at 6% slippage. It provides almost unbelievable traction at a cost that could make a 4-wheel believer of anyone.

If you want downright workpower at a down-to-earth price . . . and the kind of economy you haven't seen for years, you should look at Belarus before you buy. For more information on Belarus tractors or a franchise, please write one of the addresses below.

Food prices up 2360 per cent in Argentina

There's an interesting food price survey in the current (Feb. 9) issue of USDA's Foregin Agriculture magazine. It shows, for example, that while food prices have increased just under 57 percent in the U.S. since 1970, they've more than doubled in the United Kingdom and Mexico, more than tripled in Brazil and have gone up 2360 percent - nearly 24 times - in Argentina!

On the other hand, the survey also shows that despite this sharp increase, boneless sirloin steak was selling for only 53 cents per lb. in Buenos Aires last month. This, against $2.19 in Washington, $4.36 in Copenhagen, $3.33 in Rome, $4.08 in Stockholm and $13.75 in Tokoyo.

Some other examples: Broilers were selling for 34 cents a pound in Buenos Aries in January, 56 cents in Washington, 84 cents in Bonn, $1.02 in Paris, $1.18 in Stockholm. Eggs, for 44 cents a dozen in Buenos Aries, $1.32 in Paris, $1.23 a dozen in Rome, 85 cents in Tokyo, 92 cents in Washington.

Now, putting it another way, the average worker had to spend 11 minutes on the job to earn a pound of that sirloin in Argentina, 26 minutes in Washington, 56 minutes in Stockholm, nearly 6½ hours in Tokyo.

In Argentina workers had to work only 4 minutes for a pound of broilers. 6 minutes for a dozen eggs, 3 minutes for a quart of milk. In Washington, that'd be 8 minutes for broilers, 9 minutes for eggs, 5 minutes for the milk.

Not too many others come close. Broilers would take 25 minutes of labor (per pound) in Brasilia, 32 in Mexico City, 26 in Paris, 28 in Rome, 25 in Tokyo. Eggs, 28 minutes in Brasilia, 38 in Mexico City, 31 in Paris, 29 in Rome. A quart of milk takes 7 minutes of labor in Brussels and Ottawa, 8 minutes in Canberra (Australia), 9 minutes in Paris, 10 minutes in Rome.

Will your feed efficiency measure up to Mol-Mix?

To any cattleman, whether he's a feedlot operator or a cow-calf man, feed efficiency is the name of the game.

But mere supplementation may not be the whole answer. If you choose an inferior brand, you may just be wasting your money.

Mol-Mix liquid feed supplement contains extra "performance oriented" ingredients that many others don't have. Things like: phosphoric acid, ammonium polyphosphate, corn distillers solubles, and condensed fermented corn extractives. A feed supplement, as with any manufactured product, is no better than the quality of its construction. You get what you pay for. Mol-Mix is made with the best ingredients available.

It's just an out and out fact that Mol-Mix will make more net profits for you. Some have reported as much as $5.00 return for every dollar invested in Mol-Mix.

Stop in at your Mol-Mix dealer and find out how. He may just have a nice surprise for you.

Thoughts in Passing

"A Future For America"
By Gerald Phillips
Pequea Valley H.S.

The theme of this years national FFA week celebration, to be held from February 21 to the 28th is "A Future For America." Certainly few themes could be more appropriate in light of our Bicentennial celebrations taking place throughout our nation. If we pause for a few moments and reflect on the development of this nation, particularly the agricultural development, we might well be able to consure up a commercial for a television "Bicentennial Minute." We take you now to the CBS studios and our narrator, Earl Butz, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture: "Two hundred years ago today, 95 percent of our nations population, derived its livelyhood from the soil. Farming was hard, enduring work requiring endless hours for little reward. The average farmer was able to produce enough food for himself and four other people. Implements and farming techniques were little improved over ones used centuries ago. In the two hundred years since our nations birth, the American Farmer, along with ever increasing methods and technology has risen to the point of productivity where the average farmer produces enough meat, milk, eggs and cereal crops to comfortably feed almost 60 people and still provide a surplus for foreign trade."

This in a capsule is American agricultures history. A nation of farmers, tilling endless acres of soil, striving to nourish an ever growing American and world population. Our numbers have diminished to less than 10 percent of our nations population are still actively engaged in the growing of food. Yet our efficiency and productivity has skyrocketed to a level unmatched by any industry. Our nation, for all its industrial, scientific and military power and ingenuity was established by agriculturists. People with an abiding appreciation of the soil and water to which they were entirely dependent.

The american farmer today faces a much different attitude than his predecessors. Consumer advocates, environmentalists, government officials are seem to be bearing down on our nations farmers. Demanding more and more production, on a rapidly dwindling amount of tillable farmland, while at the same time holding a line on prices paid to farmers yet pushing higher production cost to the farmer at a rate that is forcing many to leave production all together. With a plight such as this facing us in the immediate future, what solutions or alternatives are available. How can we solve the many problems facing the world's most important resource - the producers of our food?

This is the challange being posed to Future Farmers of America Chapters all across our nation. The answer is not simple nor is it one that will be arrived at in a short period of time. The key to the challenge lies in our youth. Those enthusiastic, energetic youngsters who develop into the leaders of nations in their adult lives. The youth of our nation must be given the opportunity to answer the challenges that older generations have created and made available to them.

No other nation on earth can boast of a youth involvement program similar to the activities we provide our american youth. The Future Farmers of America Organization is only one of many that are meeting the challange by educating, and providing the leadership opportunities for our youth to develop into intelligent, competent adults to harness all our technology into a useful instrument to meet this food challenge. It is our challenge as adults to take it upon ourselves to insure the right of our youth to study and find the answers, to solve the problems we ourselves collectively have created.

The future of America is bright, regardless of what you read in the newspapers, hear on radio, or see on television. Out future lies in our youth and their ability through organizations like the FFA to meet those challenges. Its an opportunity few of us would relish individually, it almost seems insurmountable. But if we think back to out nations beginning and realize the progress that has been made by past generations, how can we not believe that with God's help our future generations will achieve even more.

Colonial garden opens

Longwood Gardens will hold a public opening of its 1976 Example Garden, "A Colonial Garden in the Twentieth Century," on February 17 between 4:00 and 6:30 p.m. The usual $1.00 weekday admission fee will be waived for the occasion, and refreshments will be served in the Music Room off the Main Conservatory. The Example Garden area is located in the Azalea House near the Main Conservatory.

The 1976 Example Garden demonstrates the possibilities for adapting colonial garden design concepts to twentieth-century living. This subject is of special interest due to the nation's Bicentennial celebrations. Homeowners will also find many practical eighteenth-century solutions to common twentieth-century home-landscaping problems. No room for a vegetable garden? The colonial gardener grew his vegetables right next to his flowers, in small beds separated by narrow paths. No privacy in the back yard? Colonial gardens were usually enclosed, protected from the public eye by fences or walls.

Longwood Gardens is located at the junction of U.S. Route 1 and Pa. Route 52, northeast of Kennett Square, Pennsylvania. It is one of the finest display gardens in the country. Its grounds and great conservatories rival those of the finest gardens in Europe. Longwood is open daily, the grounds from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., the conservatories from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $1.00 on weekdays, $1.50 on weekends and holidays.

Milk price drops

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The Middle Atlantic Federal Order Class I milk price for March 1976 is $11.68 per hundredweight for 3.5 percent milk, Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine announced recently. The price is down 18 cents from February, marking the first monthly decline in the Class I price since January 1975.

The Class II milk price for January 1976 is $8.95 per hundredweight and the January butterfat differential to producers is 9.9 cents for each tenth of a pound of butterfat.

The March Class I price and the January Class II price are both based on the January 1976 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $8.90 per hundredweight at 3.5 percent butterfat.

It doesn't take wall-to-wall carpeting to keep most employees reasonably content and productive. But it does take personal attention to little things which often turn out to be bigger than they seem.

Meat production increased

HARRISBURG — Red meat production in Pennsylvania during December 1975 was six percent above a year ago. Slaughter of meat animals was up for cattle and calves but down for hogs, sheep and lambs, according to the Crop Reporting Service.

Cattle slaughter increased 31 percent, calves 51 percent, while hog slaughter decreased 12 percent and sheep and lambs were 10 percent below December a year ago.

Nationally, total red meat production during December 1975 was up two percent from a year ago. Beef production increased 12 percent from December 1974, and veal was 50 percent higher. Hog production was down 12 percent, lamb and mutton down two percent from a year ago.

The National Transportation Safety Board announced recently that its investigation of a particular plane crash "was focused on uncovering the reason behind the apparently unauthorized descent (of the plane) to an altitude below that of the airport."

A bargain is usually something so reasonable they won't take it back when you find out what's wrong with it.

A committee should consist of three men, two of whom are absent.

ABS to close Calgary unit

"Many of the bulls and most of the breeds that could only come to North America through a Canadian importation are now resident in the United States," stated Dr. Robert E. Walton, President of American Breeders Service, in pointing out a significant consideration in the decision for closing the ABS Calgary, Alberta, Canada stud operation. Dr. Walton commented, "The Canadian unit was established in 1970 to handle the increasing number of Exotic beef bulls that were housed in Canada. They were made available to cattlemen in the United States from semen produced in Canada."

Most of the remaining bulls, and most of the breeds represented there, are now resident in the United States as a result of importation of animals born in Canada, England, Ireland or Scandinavia from original importations from the Continent of Europe. Many of the bulls originally imported into Canada have now fulfilled their qualifications for importation to the United States. Walton said, "For the present time, the Calgary Stud has fulfilled a very important mission." He went on, "It has been an immensely successful operation that contributed mightily to making new genetic material readily available to cattlemen throughout North America."

ABS is an international firm doing business in approximately 45 other countries. The firm is headquartered at DeForest, Wisconsin, with a beef facility at Wellington, Colorado, and is a part of the GRACE Agricultural Chemical Group. ABS is the largest cattle breeding organization in the world.

Sugiyama to speak at Longwood

Mrs. Toku M. Sugiyama, an expert in Sogetsu (one of the foremost schools of Ikebana flower arranging), will speak at Longwood Gardens on February 18, at 8:30 p.m. Admission will be by payment of the day's $1.00 admission fee. The lecture will be the third in a series of six "Wednesday Evening Horticultural Lectures" being offered by Longwood.

Using fresh, dried and bleached plant materials, Mrs. Sugiyama will explain the various aspects of the Sogetsu School of design. She will also demonstrate advanced studies, using a variety of objects including ceramics, sculpture and ironworks.

Godshalk receives honor

Harvest Publishing Company recently announced the winner of their Pennsylvania Farmer "Caribbean Cruise" contest.

J. Richard Godshalk, president of Hoffman Seeds, Inc., Landisville, Pa., is the winner of a 7-day cruise in the Caribbean.

The contest asked entrants to estimate the number of lines of display advertising which would run in the January 10, 1976, Farm Show issue of Pennsylvania Farmer.

ATTENTION: Cattlemen

For better daily gains at lower costs

Feed Bovotone 21

Higher feed costs and unstable market prices make it more important than ever for cattlemen to keep the cost of gain down. One sure way is to feed your own alfalfa haylage and Bovotone 21 from Vigortone.

Bovotone 21, in addition to delivering proper levels of important major minerals, trace elements and vitamins, contains abundant phosphorus to balance off the high calcium content of legume roughages.

Seldom will you need to feed any supplemental protein with a corn, haylage and Bovotone 21 program. Your cattle will do better, and your out-of-pocket costs will be cut dramatically.

Bovotone 110 and 111

Vigortone has two new pre-mixes for feedlot cattle, Bovotone 110 and 111. Both contain high levels of major minerals, trace elements and vitamins as well as non-protein nitrogen (NPN). They are particularly suited for grain and grain silage rations needing supplemental protein.

Bovotone 111 also contains MGA*, which produces a quieter bunch of heifers and promotes better daily gains.

See your Vigortone Serviceman now

If you're concerned about feeding costs, too, give your Vigortone serviceman a call. He has many up-to-date feeding programs that will help you save money.

You'll soon see why more cattlemen are feeding Vigortone — especially now.

Cattlemen's Assoc.contemplates merger with livestock group

PHOENIX, Arizona — Members of the American National Cattlemen's Association have voted to pursue a possible consolidation of their association with the National Livestock Feeders Association.

ANCA members voted during their annual convention that it was their intent to work out a consolidation with NLFA, "provided that upon further study and review, it can be demonstrated to be feasible, practical and in the best interest of the cattle industry."

The membership also approved a plan of procedure whereby ANCA and NLFA would develop a proposed new organization — assuming that NLFA members also would approve the plan at their convention in February. The proposed plan would have to be brought back for approval by the memberships of both Associations in 1977 before a consolidation could be effected.

ANCA officials pointed out that mounting pressures on the beef cattle industry have increased the need for strong, unified national representation. There is a need to avoid unnecessary duplication of efforts and to speak with a strong, united voice, they said.

If the NLFA members also approve the plan, a consolidation study committee will be named by the presidents of both Associations, and this group will develop the consolidation details for further consideration of and acceptance by the memberships of the two Associations.

The ANCA has individual members plus 45 affiliated state cattle and 14 national breed associations. The Association, which serves all industry segments and geographic areas, has a headquarters office in Denver and also a Washington office. The NLFA represents livestock producers and feeders in 20 states, with primary concentration in North Central states. In addition to individual members, 9 state organizations are affiliated with the Omaha-based NLFA.

The action at the Phoenix Convention followed an agreement by officers of the two groups to pursue a possible consolidation of the two major trade associations serving the nation's beef cattle industry.

Conservation topic slated for Hinkletown

The Hinkletown Adult Farmer Program will look into the development of Conservation Plans to meet the requirements of the Pennsylvania Clean Stream Law. Two meetings are scheduled for this purpose, one on February 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Caernarvon Elementary School and the second meeting will be held on February 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hinkletown Alternative School.

Soil loss through erosion is costing farmers many dollars each year by reducing yields, increasing the need for larger amounts of fertilizer and pesticides. Soil losses on a field with 4 feet of fall in one hundred feet can exceed 11 tons each year when planting continuous corn.

The meeting will look into the factors which affect soil loss and what can be done to keep erosion to a minimum. One area farm will be looked at and discussed in detail concerning erosion. What alternatives could be used on the farm from a complete terrace system to no change at all will be considered.

Area farmers and interested persons are invited to attend and bring their questions. Those interested in obtaining a Conservation Plan for their farm through the Adult Farmer Program will be given the opportunity to do so.

The Caernarvon Elementary School is located at the East end of Churchtown on Route 23. The Hinkletown Alternative School is located on Wanner Road just East of Hinkletown.

No-frost controversy raging

In our energy-conscious society, one of the persistent stories making the rounds is that no-frost refrigerators are quite costly to operate.

Reports that frost-free models use 50 percent to even as much as 80 percent more electricity than manually defrosted models may be confusing many consumers unnecessarily.

"Such charges are misleading; they cannot be substantiated," according to Jane Butel, manager of the Consumers Institute for General Electric and Hotpoint.

"Refrigerators without the no-frost feature may save a little electricity, but the claims of vast savings are exaggerated," Ms. Butel says.

Basically there are three types of refrigerators. Single-door models that must be manually defrosted. Two-door cycle-defrost models in which the refrigerator section is frost-free and the freezer section must be defrosted. And two-door models that are completely frost-free in both sections.

The manually defrosted models are generally available only in small sizes. GE, for example, offers only two: one at 9.5 cu. ft. and one at 11.5 cu. ft. Comparing the larger model to a similarly sized cycle-defrost unit does show a difference in operating cost, but Ms. Butel points out that few consumers today are interested in a small refrigerator without a true freezer section.

A more valid comparison is made with 14 cu. ft. models, a size far more common in American homes, says Ms. Butel. GE offers a cycle-frost model rated 13.6 cu. ft. that uses 99 kilowatt-hours (kwhr) a month, and also a 14.2 cu. ft. no-frost model with a Power-Saver feature that can hold energy consumption down to 111 kwhr a month. (Ratings are based on laboratory tests — power consumption may vary in actual usage.)

At the current 3.2 cents kwhr national average cost for electricity, the 12 kwhr difference amounts to just 38 cents a month.

Ms. Butel's research also has shown that most large no-frost refrigerator-freezers actually cost less per cubic foot to operate than do cycle-defrost models. On the same test basis, GE's 11.8 cu. ft. cycle-defrost unit costs $.258 -cf- per month — or $3.04 — while its 23.8 cu. ft. no-frost side-by-side model costs $.184-cf-per month with the Power Saver switch on Dry, or $4.38.

"The no-frost unit in this example does cost almost 50 percent more to operate than the one you have to defrost," says Ms. Butel. "But when you remember that it has twice the capacity, it's quickly apparent that you don't pay a penalty for the added convenience of frost-free operation."

Beginning early in 1976, all refrigerators will carry energy usage labels that will enable consumers to estimate operating cost before they buy.

Twin Valley FFA project books earn Berks County awards

Ten members of the Twin Valley Future Farmers of America earned awards in the Berks Co. FFA Project Book Contest. Record books on these projects are judged by the vocational agriculture teachers on the basis of accuracy, completeness, neatness, etc.

Harvey Bitler received first place in the three enterprise productive project book category. Darrel Stoltzfus earned second place in the two enterprise category. Jan Oatman's horse project book was judged first in its category. In the job oriented project book contest; Ted Ford received second place, Barry Haller received fourth, Dave Barth sixth, and Steve Souden seventh in the under 600 hours division. In the 600 to 1000 hour division, Gary McVaugh received first place and Ray Cylcewski fourth. Steve Kohl received eighth place in the 1000 to 2000 hour division.

Additionally, the chapter scrapbook received first place in the county scrapbook contest. The scrapbook is kept by chapter historian Kathie Hart, and chapter reporter Jan Oatman. The scrapbook and the student project books are now eligible to compete in the Pennsylvania FFA Contests.

Keeping record books teaches FFA members how to properly keep records, which is an invaluable skill they put to good use in life.

Good decisions are seldom made in an ivory tower. Keep in touch — ask questions — encourage feedback. If keeping you informed is a pleasant experience, people will do it gladly. If it isn't, they won't.

Pennsylvania agriculturalists to visit western Europe, Russia

A delegation of Pennsylvania agricultural leaders plans to visit Russia and Western Europe on a 22-day goodwill People-to-People inspection mission this summer.

Founded in 1956 by the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, the People-to-People Travel Program was conceived to foster better understanding between people of the world. For 18 years the Goodwill People-to-People Travel Program has been providing Americans with the opportunity to travel in a group with similar occupation or professional interests.

Homer K. Luttringer, Lancaster, has been named host for the delegation. He is director of communications and promotions for Sperry New Holland, the farm equipment division of Sperry Rand Corporation, and has had extensive experience in agricultural public relations.

Membership in the Pennsylvania agricultural People-to-People delegation is limited to official and personal invitation only. The delegates are scheduled to take part in numerous visits with agricultural leaders and representatives of the United States and foreign governments in the countries they visit. The delegation will visit England, Denmark, The Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Germany and Switzerland.

The entire goodwill mission is privately sponsored and organized under the Goodwill People-to-People Travel Programs and is approved and endorsed by the national office of People-to-People International, with headquarters in Kansas City, Missouri.

While the mission is not open to the public, those interested in learning how delegates are selected may write to the host, Luttringer, at 1559 Mission Road, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

American Viewpoints

Let us show, not merely in great crises, but in every day affairs of life, qualities of practical intelligence, of hardihood and endurance, and above all, the power of devotion to a lofty ideal
Theodore Roosevelt

Ag-safety Tip

Grain flowing to an unloader or a collapsing pocket of grain can pull a person beneath the grain surface faster than quicksand. Shut off the unloader before stepping on the grain surface and use a safety line before entering a deep storage facility.

Shelhamer visits mushroom plants

KENNETT SQUARE — Representative Kent D. Shelhamer, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, met with mushroom growers and Grange officials late last week to discuss problems currently affecting Pennsylvania's $100,000,000 mushroom industry.

The meeting, initiated by Grange officials, was held at the Kennett Grange hall near here.

Shelhamer said that "I wanted to hear, first-hand, about problems the growers face, and to see for myself conditions at the plants." Following the meeting, Shelhamer and the group visited several mushroom plants in the Kennett Square area.

"Pennsylvania's mushroom industry is an important part of the state's agricultural economy," said J. Luther Snyder, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, "and the Grange is concerned about problems and situations that could adversely affect it.

"We must remember that Pennsylvania is the nation's leading producer of mushrooms and accounts for more than 50 percent of the total mushroom production in the United States." He and Shelhamer indicated there will be follow-up meetings to discuss points brought out in the initial session.

Snyder pointed out that there are about 400 growers in the state, with about 300 in the Chester-Delaware County area, 85 more in Berks County and 15 in the western part of Pennsylvania.

Among those at the meeting were Earl Holston, president, and Tim King, executive director of the American Mushroom Institute, and Neal R. Buss, research analyst for the House Agriculture Committee.

Notes

It was one hundred years ago that Edison founded the world's first industrial research facility in Menlo Park, New Jersey. He built the world's first commercial three-wire electric station at Sunbury (Northumberland County) in 1883. That plant later became part of Pennsylvania Power & Light Company's Susquehanna Division. Edison's breakthroughs, especially perfecting the electric bulb and building an electricity supply system, were the start of a new way of life in the United States.

What's New

PISTON POWERED POWER TOOLS

Piston Powered Products, a division of Rotorway Inc., has introduced two gasoline powered tools — a circular saw and power drill — for contractors and homeowners, designed to replace conventional electrical power tools.

Piston Powered Product's Super Saw, the gasoline powered circular saw, has several advantages in addition to the obvious one of supplying its own power. This remarkable saw actually makes a straighter cut and follows a line more accurately than the conventional electric saw, due to "flotation" provided by the normal engine operating frequency. It also takes less fuel to power the Super Saw for the duration of a cut than it does to run a generator to provide power for an electric saw.

The variable speed Piston Drill is no heavier or larger than conventional ½" electric drill, yet it will do the same job on its own power. It smoothly drills through wood, masonry, sheet metal — just about anything. And unlike the electric motor which develops full torque when the drill stalls, the Piston Drill develops no torque, thus eliminating another work hazard.

By adding the Hi-Torque Angle Drive Adaptor to the Piston Drill you have a completely versatile tool that delivers instant portable power.

For more information, write to Piston Powered Products, 14806 South Interstate 10, Tempe, Az. 85284.

Publishers Micronutrient Literature

LASALLE, Ill. - Carus Chemical Company announces publication of current literature for the growing micronutrient market.

"A Survey of Literature on Micronutrients" by Carus, includes article reprints from the March 1975 issue of Custom Applicator. Two technical bulletins on the micronutrient, manganese sulfate, are included in the informative packet by Carus. The Custom Applicator reprint includes articles on sales, marketing and research in the micronutrients field.

Carus markets manganese sulfate, essential to chlorophy 11 production in plants and resultant growth. Deficiency of this trace element causes chlorosis or yellowing of the leaves, common in crops such as soybeans, corn, wheat and other grains plus various types of garden vegetables. With growing emphasis on this relatively new field, the micronutrient literature should prove most beneficial to custom applicators and farmers alike.

Write for file No. 112, addressing Mr. T. R. Walton, Sales Manager, Carus Chemical Co., 1500 Eighth Street, LaSalle, Illinois, 61301.

A prime function of the leader is to keep hope alive.

Front Mount Hoists

Heavy-duty, lightweight EdBro front mount hoists from Ontario Equipment Inc., Orland Park, Ill., provided the safest unloading for all types of farm loads. They are especially effective for beets, silage, fertilizer and other sticky loads.

The single-ram front mount hoists offer maximum stablility with minimum maintenance. According to Ontario, EdBro hoists are the most economical way to get the hauling job done using regular farm bodies.

Compact, powerful EdBro hoists are the lightest heavy-duty unit available. The lift is located where the leverage is - up front. This also means that the weight is located for best front axle loading - up front.

EdBro hoists are used with trucks or pup and semi-trailer units. A complete range of hoists is available for bodies 8 ft. to 26 ft. long. Also a full line of twin-ram underbody hoists is available.

All EdBro hoists have a combined pump and power take-off which eliminates the need for drive shaft and universal joints. Unique cab controls are simple to install and offer convenient operation.

For further information on the full line of EdBro front mount hoists for farm applications and the name of the nearest dealer, contact Ontario Equipment Inc., 15700 South La Grange Road, Orland Park, Ill. 60462. Phone: 312-349-9220.

Butler introduces buildings

introduced the slope-wall design concept to the farm market in 1970, has broadened the clear-span Farmsted line to include four widths of all-metal, straight-wall buildings.

The Farmsted II (straight-wall) offers most of the engineering advantages of the Farmsted I (slope-wall), at a slightly higher price, according to the manufacturer. Farmsted II also offers the benefits of straight-wall construction, including large double slide doors in either or both sidewalls. For example, the 30' x 15' endwall door in the 60' wide building takes a 4-row combine and a dual wheel tractor at the same time.

All Butler Farmsted buildings are available in four factory-applied colors, or plain galvanized, and all low-cost Farmsteds are easily adaptable to grain storage and a variety of uses.

Not Hot Air

Inhaling hot smoke into the lungs causes its own problems. Whether the smoke is from tobacco, lettuce leaves, brush fires, or marijuana.

But new experiments show that tobacco smoke and marijuana - which affect the lungs in quite opposite ways - do have certain similar effects, too. For example, both inhibit the action of scavenger-type cells, called macrophages, that literally gobble up germs in the lungs.

Normally, as soon as any foreign matter floats toward the air sacs, the macrophages swallow the offenders. But tobacco and marijuana smoke slow down this action and cripple a devouring line of defense.

Nobody is sicker than the man who is sick on his day off.

Foamcrafting is delightful craft

It's been said that the best gift of all — for any occasion — is one you make yourself. Here's a simple project you'll enjoy putting together, and one your favorite little girl is sure to love. It's a modern version of the old-fashioned "rag doll," and you'll find it just as charming as the original.

(Helpful hint: gather all material together before starting project.)

Rag Doll

Materials needed:

One 12" cone of Styrofoam plastic foam for doll body;

One 5" ball of plastic foam for the head;

Two pieces of 2" diameter plastic foam pole — each 3" long — for the legs;

One 4" plastic foam egg, cut in half, for the feet;

One skein of yarn (any color) for hair;

Four pieces of felt: 1 black, 1 white, 1 red, 1 blue;

Two yards of pre-gathered eyelet for trim;

Three chenille stems for arms;

Ten toothpicks for assembly;

Three acrylic paints: 1 pink (flesh), 1 black, 1 blue;

One jar tacky white glue.

Step one: Head

Paint the 5" ball flesh color. Cut eyes, nose and mouth from felt and glue in place. (See pattern.)

For the hair, cut yarn in 24" lengths, glue across the top of the head — starting at the forehead — and placing one strand at a time until you reach the neck line. Glue a few short lengths to the front as bangs. Make the hair "part" by pinning a short length of yarn from the forehead to neck to cover glued area. Braid the hair.

Step two: Assemble Body

Paint body blue and feet black. Assemble body as shown in drawing using two toothpicks dipped in glue and placed at each assembly point.

For the arms, cut a piece of felt 4" x 6", and glue into a tubed shape. For the hands, glue felt hands to a chenille stem. Next, thread stem through tube and attach to body.

Step three: Dress Doll

Make felt apron, outlined with eyelet. Wrap eyelet for pantaloons.

This project is one of many found in a new book, "Foamcrafting With Styrofoam," at most craft and hobby stores.

Berks youth receives FFA honor

James P. Adam, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Adam, Hamburg R2 was recently named recipient of the Keystone Farmer Award by the Pennsylvania Association of Future Farmers of America.

James is a senior at Hamburg Area High School and is completing his fourth year in Vocational Agriculture and the Hamburg Area Future Farmers as one of their officers. He has served the chapter as Chaplain, Reporter and Secretary, the office he now holds. He also is an active member in Zion's United Church of Christ, Virginville Grange, Virginville 4-H Dairy Club.

He has shown dairy animals at the Reading and Kutztown Fairs for the past five years in addition to winning in the tractor driving contest at Kutztown. He won first place in the Tri-county Area driving contest and will represent the area at Penn State in June. The previous three years he also went to Penn State to compete in judging contests.

His projects include swine finishing, silage corn and a dairy herd, each year entering his project books in the county evaluation and receiving awards. He is a good mechanic and is developing his skills by projects: two wrecked, unloading silage wagons were rebuilt and a calf rearing setup. He has also helped with remodelling and operating the family farm that milks over 100 cows daily and grows sufficient feed to feed them.

A second-best decision quickly made and vigorously carried out is better than the best decision too late arrived at and halfheartedly carried out. In everyday affairs, as in battle, we are given one life to live, and the decision is ours, whether to wait for circumstances to make up our mind — or to act, and in acting, to live.

POULTRY POINTERS

BY DR. R. A. ZIMMERMAN

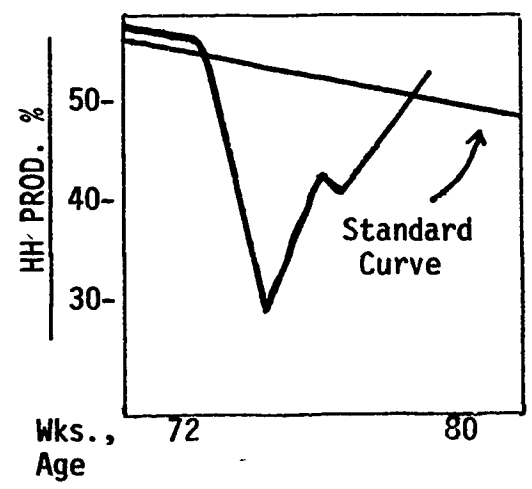
Recently a producer called to report a problem and, while the immediate solution was quite evident, there was a question regarding what should be done long-term to insure full recovery and to protect against other undue stresses during the recovery period.

The problem had been inadequate water for an unknown period with no water available for 24 - 36 hours. Production had dropped and there had been some mortality. The obvious solution, of course, was to restore the watering system to normal.

There are other important considerations. The birds have obviously been stressed so should the feed be fortified, should medication be used or should any changes be made? There is no single correct answer. The nature of the stress must be considered along with the health status and the risk of additional stresses.

In this particular flock there were no other current problems and the chance for additional stresses were minimal. Therefore, in addition to restoring adequate water, day length was increased to provide some immediate stimulations and electrolytes and vitamins were added through the water for a short period. The feed remained the same and no medication was used.

Production returned to normal, egg quality was satisfactory and the birds appeared to be in good health.



LET YOUR PURINA DEALER HELP SOLVE YOUR POULTRY PROBLEMS.

Almost 50 years of intensive poultry research at the Purina Research Farm have built up the world's largest commercial fund of feeding information.
